Elevation ET daughter tops sale at $150,000

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — A new chapter in embryo transfer merchandising literally was written on Thursday when an Elevation daughter topped the Great Expectations Sale at $150,000.

A transfer herself, the three-year-old Mil-R-Mor Roxy Velvet, sired by the legendary Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation out of the high producing C Glenridge Citation Roxy, brought the new local high price at Chapter Four of the Expectations sales.

It was just about a year ago that Lime-Hollow Elevation Jessie topped the Chapter Three sale at the Guernsey Barn at $116,000.

At this year's sale, an international touch was added to the local flavor that dominated last year's sale-topping purchase.

Velvet was purchased on Thursday by the Balsillas Syndicate, of Bogota, Colombia.

Last year, Jessie was bought by a local group that included M. Robert Young, of Lancaster; and Galen Crouse, of Schoenck. This year, Young was the contending bidder on Velvet.

As a two-year-old, Velvet is producing 18,227 lbs in 335 days with 726 lbs of fat at 4 percent test. She was consigned by Robert and Kay Miller and family, of Dundee, Ill.

Following dispersal of their herd in 1974, according to son, Craig Miller, his father prepared to begin embryo transferring. An AI technician, Robert Miller began the transfers in 1976.

Miller is now a partner in M.O.M. Transfers, of Dundee, Ill.

"We had been hoping for a price around $100,000," Craig Miller commented, following the close of the rapid bidding.

Miller is familiar with the Colombia group and has worked with them in ET. In fact, Velvet is being returned to Dundee by the Colombia group. She was bred to Illini Ivy Image on November 17.

A representative of the Colombia group said she will eventually be used in ET in continuing herd improvement. The group has imported implanted heifers, but the import of embryos has not yet been approved in his country. Also, the transfer technology is not yet available there.

Velvet's dam, the well-known Roxy, has milk records to more than 26,000 lbs. and is a consistent 1000-lb. plus fat producer.

In all, 22 head were sold in the Great Expectations Sale at an average of $13,457.

Second highest seller was Gillsbrook Claretta Dee Dee at $29,000. Sired by Wapa Arlinda Conductor, she is out of The Steinhauers Elevation Dee.

Legislative roundup

Ag areas, checkoff changes move

BY CURT HARLER

HARRISBURG — In a short but busy week legislators in the State Capital reported out of the House Agriculture Committee HB 143, the ag areas bill.

In addition, proposals were drafted to change substantially the voting procedures for dairy, fruit and other state commodity programs.

On Tuesday morning the Ag Committee unanimously passed HB 143, the Ag Areas bill. It allows for voluntary establishment of ag districts and provides some incentives for committing land to an ag area.

It now will pass through the rules committee and then be brought before the full House.

Several modifications were written into the bill and some definitions established, but prime sponsor Rep. Noah Wenger, Stevens, said the basic thrust of the bill is not changed and he remains optimistic about its future.

It will give farmers freedom from nuisance ordinances against normal farm practices and protect them somewhat against land condemnation.

HB 143 defines normal farm practices as "the customary and generally accepted activities, practices, and procedures that farmers adopt, use or engage in year after year" in agriculture, agronomy, horticulture, silviculture, and aquaculture.

The bill requires owners of at least 500 acres of adjoining or non-contiguous land to request an ag area. The earlier 10 percent minimum requirement was dropped.

An amendment increased from two to three the required number of farmers who sit on the local ag committee. Another established

Exhibitors drop by one-third at Farm Equipment Exposition

HARRISBURG — A sharp reduction in the number of exhibitors at this year's Farm Equipment Exposition may be casting a growing cloud of doubt over the future of the struggling ag show that lumped into its third year of existence last week.

The number of exhibitors at the 1981 Expo was down approximately a third from the total with displays during the previous two years.

Figures provided by Stanley G. Saellam, Administrative Officer for Operations of the Farm Show Building staff, show the continuing decline in exhibitor attendance at Expo.

The first Expo in 1979 had 188 exhibitors.

In the second year, the total of exhibitors slipped to 177.

But for the third show, just held March 5-7, the number of exhibitors dropped sharply to 128.

The final total of 128 was quite a bit below the "over 170" the state had been touting in its pre-show publicity and advertising.

"A total of 213 had expressed interest in the Expo," Saellam said.

"But 128 ended up coming to the show."

In response to whether a fourth Expo will be held next year, Saellam replied.

"That's a good question. Some of the feelings that I've gotten are good. Some are bad. And some are on the fence."

The drop in the number of exhibitors at this year's show appears to be due to a combination of the economic times and farmer attendance not living up to expectations at the first two shows.

This year, the weatherman also threw the Expo a curve with an opening day snowstorm.

A random survey of exhibitors brought forth Expo descriptions ranging from "terrific" to "horrible," with a variety of comments falling between those extremes.

Stray voltage, the facts may shock you

BY SHEILA MILLER

LITITZ — Stray voltage, sometimes called transient voltage, stray current, tingle voltage and electrical pollution, is a subject drawing much attention at dairying seminars.

Recently, this subject brought Lancaster County electricians and power company representatives together at the Farm and Home Center for some insight into the problem and its cure.

Stray voltage, which in simplified terms means excess current load seeking an earth ground through the path of least resistance, has been blamed for symptoms ranging from low milk production to mastitis by farmers and specialists in the dairy industry. Researchers at universities around the country have been studying stray voltage, trying to find solutions which will overcome the current problem.

According to a study conducted by William Fairbank and Lloyd Craine of the University of California and the Washington State University, respectively, dairy cows which show behavioral and production changes that can't be traced back to feed, water, disease, weather, mishandling, or other usual causes, may be suffering from stray voltage.

Symptoms of stray voltage, they say, include:

— an abnormal decrease in or inability to obtain expected milk production;

— animals hesitate at or even refuse to approach certain drinkers, feeders, or metallic parlor or holding area equipment; — animals may balk at entering the milking parlor or try to jump across transition joints;

— a number of animals are affected simultaneously;

— general behavior may show abnormal twitching, kicking, nervousness in the parlor; and — the symptoms may come and go unpredictably.

The researchers were quick to point out, however, these symptoms are not exclusively caused by "metallic structure-to-earth stray voltages/currents". An uncomfortable milking process can cause similar responses, they said and urged dairy producers to look into the usual causes before searching for stray voltage.

Ray Shenk, of Shenk's Farm Service, Lititz, reports stray voltage has been recognized as Sow Power Sow Feeds from Pennfield... A Fast Start for a Profitable Finish!

The right nutrition for your sows starts at breeding and continues through lactation. That's why Pennfield Feeds developed Sow Power Feeds. They provide the exact combination of nutrients, at the proper time, to assure you better conception and farrowing rates, plus better milking sows for heavier weaning weights.

Bigger pigs at weaning means healthier, faster growing pigs to market. And that is Pennfield's measure of success for our customers. Because at Pennfield Feeds, our goal is to help you become more successful.

We believe we can accomplish this goal. Ask your Pennfield representative, or call today for more information about how Pennfield's Penn Pro Sow Feeding program can improve your herd efficiency, and your profitability.

Ask the Old Farmer. I recently purchased a small oak desk — one I discovered was given years ago as a premium by the Larkin Soap company. How could they give a desk of this kind as a premium for selling soap? GS, Atlanta

The profit on the soap was substantial. They gave desks, bookcases, dishes, and teapots. We own a desk and bookcase combined. Don't know how many hundred-weights of soap it took to earn it.

Lancaster Farming says...

Let's take ag's EKG

"Agriculture: it's your heartbeat, America" is the theme for National Agriculture Day 1981.

Every politician worth his salt either has signed or voted in favor of National Ag Day, to be celebrated this year on Thursday, March 19.

The U.S. Congress last fall passed Resolution 560 proclaiming National Agriculture Day. Ronald Reagan will host ceremonies in Washington this week to make it official.

In Pennsylvania, Governor Dick Thornburgh signed a proclamation similar to the national one.

While farmers take all the bows, it may be a good idea to sit back, turn on our heart machine, and find out just how strong is agriculture's heartbeat.

Farmers will bask in the glow of speeches telling them they do a better job of providing food for a hungry world than ever before in history.

They'll listen to that as they wonder whether they'll be able to meet the next payment on their own feed bill.

Farmers will be told they each now feed 58, or 60, or 64 other people in the United States and abroad. Little or no mention will be made of the supporting services and industries which help the farmer and lower that proportion considerably.

They'll hear that the week after returning from a meeting where they were a grain mill operator said a rail car shortage means their grain can't be moved, or hours after being told the equipment they ordered is tied up someplace between here and Chicago.

Farmers will be congratulated on their ever-increasing grain yields.

They will try not to think about what would happen if we have another dry year, a repeat of the corn leaf blight infestation of a decade ago, or a combination of the two.

Farmers will be assured the future for American farm goods is bright, that the hungry world will buy all the American farmer can produce.

No one will dare raise the question of yet another embargo, but it seems America's diplomatic and military arsenal has been reduced to two weapons: threats of devastating nuclear devices, and food.

Farmers will be told how important they are as the backbone of this nation.

In the roar of cheers, requests by farmers and their lobby for greater help will go unheard. It's easier to pass a bill praising farmers than it is to pass one which will do something for them.

Farmers will be assured the other 96 percent of America is behind the farm community, and supports farmers' activities 100 percent.

Speakers would see it as unkind to suggest that most farmers' problems today come from farmers themselves, their lack of political planning, their tendency to fight change rather than bend with it, their living with an outdated image of themselves.

Yes, our EKG finds agriculture's heartbeat is strong and the patient is doing well despite adversity.

But the life support systems which keep agriculture alive are many, and they are being stretched farther and farther from the farm.

Agriculture needs action in addition to adulation if it is to continue to be healthy.

A HIGHER AUTHORITY March 15, 1981

Background Scripture:
Matthew 21:45 through 22:46
Devotional Reading:
Psalm 119:169-176

A former powerful state legislator in the Senate of Pennsylvania used to boast that he never allowed his religion to interfere with his politics. Many of his constituents often wished that he had, for his politics usually seemed quite lacking in religious values.

This old question of mixing religion and politics — powerfully affecting the Presidential candidacies of Al Smith and John Kennedy, as well as the more recent contest between Jimmie Carter and Ronald Reagan — has been with civilization for a long, long time.

Caesar's Share

It lay at the heart of the dilemma with which the Pharisees tried to entrap Jesus in Matthew 22: "Is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar or not?" There was nothing unique in their asking him this, for it was one of the burning issues which divided many of the Jews in that day. Some, those who most resented Roman rule, held that the payment of the tax was not compatible with Jewish religious law. At the other end of the spectrum, the Sadducees, believed that they must comply with any law the Romans enforced. In the middle — were the Pharisees who believed that a Jew's first loyalty was to God, but that the tax was not infringement of that loyalty.

Apparently, the Pharisees assumed that Jesus would, because of his previous conflict with governmental authority, deny the payment of such a tax. With this subversive answer anticipated, they knew they would trap him into making a statement that would cause him great trouble. Teacher, we know that you care for no man, for you do not regard the position of men (22:16).

What Belongs to God

The answer that Jesus gave the Pharisees was probably rightly understood by them, for Matthew says:

When they heard it, they marveled. Essentially, his position was the same as theirs on this question. But many people since that time have misinterpreted what Jesus said. Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's. From this statement which is hardly ambiguous, some interpreters have inferred that Jesus was proclaiming that some areas of life belong to the state and some to God. They have often gone further to indicate that, whereas the body belongs to the state, the spirit belongs to God.

What is wrong with this interpretation is that it fails to recognize that EVERYTHING belongs to God: body, mind, and spirit. There is no corner of life upon which he does not have the prior claim. When our loyalty to God conflicts with our loyalty to secular authority, it must always be God who is acknowledged as the higher authority.

So it is never a question of whether we should "mix" politics and religion, but how

TO BEWARE OF MANURE PIT GAS

This is the time of the year when many liquid manure pits will be emptied and taken to the field for fertilizer purposes. The liquid manure pit is a modern method of storing livestock waste, especially in the larger operations. However, this system is not without potential health danger for both man and beast. When the liquid manure is disturbed, or agitated, we get various kinds of gases released; these may be highly explosive and lethal to everyone. I'd strongly urge that farmers emptying their pits to be sure of sufficient ventilation in the building or area above the pit. Also, no smoking or open flames near the area. We often read about men and animals being suffocated with these gases; also, the gases will explode and burn the building. The pit should not be entered after emptying without a gas mask or some type of respirator. Don't take chances in and around manure pits that have been disturbed or emptied.

TO CULL DAIRY COWS

Dairymen have expanded their herds to the extent that we now have more milk than the demand can consume. This is taxing milk marketing concerns and depressing prices. The one practical suggestion from dairy authorities is for every herd owner to cull out several of his lowest-producing cows. Some dairy cooperatives are now paying farmers a bonus to cull out these poorer cows. I realize that it is difficult to do this for fear of reducing the amount of the monthly milk check; however, due to high feed costs and other inputs, the loss of several poorer producers, and the use of this feed into higher producers, might not hurt so badly. We support the idea of culling at this time.

TO CREEP FEED LAMBS

Easter is just a month away and one of the best times of the year to sell spring lambs. Sheep producers who are planning to market lambs on or near Easter might consider some extra grain for these lambs at this time. A creep feeder can be used to permit the lambs this extra grain while keeping out the ewes. A mixture of cracked corn and oats can be used. This extra weight will increase the pounds of lamb to be marketed at very favorable prices. Also, the milk flow of the ewe flock can be increased by feeding them the extra pound of grain per day to add additional weight to the lambs before marketing. The Easter season is one of the most favorable prices for lamb producers. I'd urge shepherds to take advantage of these prices, if early lambs are to be marketed.

TO TOPDRESS WHEAT

The practice of applying extra nitrogen to winter wheat is one way to increase both grain and straw yields. The present outlook is very good for wheat prices this summer. Growers are urged to give this practice some attention at this time. The application of 30 to 50 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre during mid to late March, when vegetative growth is starting, will give good results. The higher rates may be applied to lighter soils such as sand, gravel, or shale. The lighter applications on wheat where it has been seeded down to clover or alfalfa, or where there is more danger of lodging.

WE'RE NUMBER ONE!

Per Bale or Per Silo Preserve Hay and Haylage Nutrients with BEACON PRE-SERV* Products!

If you use hay by the bale, Beacon Hay Pre-Serv lets you bale it at 25% moisture. This allows you to bale earlier in the day, later at night, and well before rain can damage it while drying. Baling at higher moisture levels means you get tougher hay with less leaf shatter... hay that cows definitely prefer, with as much as 20% more nutritional value!

If you ensile hay into hay crop silage, Beacon Silage Pre-Serv controls the fermentation process by speeding it up. Therefore, a stable silage condition is reached much sooner. Less heat is produced during the fermentation process. The reduced temperatures can lessen the chance of protein being heat-damaged.

That means more nutrients in the haylage where they can be used to make more milk. And that means less feed to buy.

Hay Pre-Serv. Silage Pre-Serv. Both are blends of food-grade mold inhibitors, antioxidants, and flavors. They improve palatability and digestibility while they reduce spoilage. And both are easy and inexpensive to apply. Find out more about these great products now. Per bale or per silo, you'll get more milk production, and that means more profits!

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

It is high time that the farmers protest the marketing techniques they are subject to and conditioned to work under. When a farmer sells his produce, it is generally over the auction block, in contrast to his purchases of grains, medicines, machinery, and repairs, that are over the counter.

Compare for a moment the two systems. Over the counter the price is determined by the seller. If the buyer (farmer) chooses not to buy, he either does without or scrounges until he finds a lower price.

However, feed supplements, grinder costs, machinery parts, fuel, electricity, new equipment to replace the old and broken-down, are not negotiable. The farmer pays what he is told to give. The seller sets the price and the farmer pays, and complains, going back to his herd or fields.

When the crop is in, the milk produced, or the steers are fattened, does the farmer set the price he knows he needs to get to pay his bills? Can he guarantee that his wages or interest will be paid? No, not over the auction block!

The auction is a buyers market, and the seller (the farmer) only get what the buyer chooses to give. What alternative does a farmer have for selling cattle for dairy cows?

Most prices outside of the auctions are set by the auction averages, and as usual the farmer does not control the purse. He can not hold out until his price is met, he ships the animal (load of hay, or grain) and takes the check that comes back.

This is unfair to all farmers, and probably is a major reason so many small farmers are going under.

In ancient Europe and in early America the method of selling for a farmer was at a farmer's market. There, his wares were displayed and he himself would dicker with the buyers until he got his fair price, or else he took his animals or produce back home. If the farmer was too busy to spend a day at the market he could ask a friend who was going, or who had time to sell it for him. He got a fair commission for his time and the farmer got his price.

With grain as high as it is from the mill, it doesn't pay to raise cattle to sell at current prices. With gas, diesel, parts, seed, and fertilizer so high, farmers lose money selling their grain.

I cannot see why farmers today are selling for 1978 prices in 1981, except that they have no alternative to the auction system—yet!

Dear Editor:

We in the Veal Industry think its about time for the truth about veal. These past several months were very hard for the veal grower and the consumer alike.

We've seen the price drop 50 cents per pound or more, we've watched T.V. programs and read articles about veal calves. After which people have asked, "How could you do such a thing to those calves?" After looking at our calves they can't see how the truth got so distorted.

Most of the opposition comes from Dr. Michael Fox. Coming from England, where he devastated the veal industry, trying to do the same here. What Dr. Fox neglects to say that England imports 80 percent of its meat from the United States.

Dr. Fox thinks we're cruel to our calves and says we almost starve them to death. Why does Dr. Fox keep an animal of the wild, his so-called pet wolf, caged in his own backyard? Why also is it that when our calves are ready for market that they are 95 to 100 percent prime kosher veal?

According to Dr. Fox, by the time our calves go to market they are so weak and malnourished they just fall over and die. I guarantee you, Dr. Fox, that if you were to leave anyone of our finished calves out of their pens it would pull you and your kind back to England. But we wouldn't want that, would we? Well maybe the calf could just set you down for a soft landing somewhere in the middle.

Natural resource meeting,

I don't think most people realize the repercussions that would be felt if the veal industry were to suddenly cease. After all Agriculture is America's largest industry. First of all to fill the pinch would be the dairy farmer losing from $40 to $60 per culled bull sent to market.

I'm sure every dairy farmer remembers what he got for calves 15 to 20 years ago, and also where those calves went to from the sale barn.

Also the dairy farmer would have a tremendous supply and surplus of dried feed grade milk on the market going nowhere. And also more of a debt for the Federal Government to buy it. It would also be detrimental to the trucking industry. For we depend on them to deliver us milk, haul our calves to market, and deliver the meat to retail and wholesale markets. Also affected would be the butchers and meat cutters.

So, in reality, everyone would loose in the end, causing more unemployment and higher food costs. We veal growers think its time the truth should be told before its too late for everyone.

This pig reached 221 lbs. in just 150 days on the Agway swine feeding program. And that's not unusual.

It's no secret that feed is the single biggest cost in producing pork. That's why it pays to make sure your feeding program gets your pigs to market weight in the shortest possible time.

From Agway Squealer Pellets to Agway Pork Finisher, there's a farm-tested Agway feed nutritionally formulated for each stage of a pig's growth. Agway complete swine feeds provide all known nutritional needs, including energy, protein (amino acids), minerals and vitamins.

BACKED BY FEED TRIALS ON 1800 PIGS ANNUALLY.

Agway, in conjunction with other cooperatives, runs feed trials on 1800 pigs annually at the Agway Swine Research Farm in Lexington, Ill.

New feed ideas are constantly tested and proven, and the results incorporated into the Agway swine feeding program.

The ideal hog, as defined by the American Pork Congress, attains a weight of 220 lbs. in 150 to 165 days. It requires no more than 3 lbs. of feed per each pound of gain and delivers a loin 30 inches long with a loin eye of 5 square inches.

In the past, Agway Squealer Pellets and Agway Starter Pellets were developed as the direct result of this program.

Chickies Watershed Assn. to discuss flood problems

MANHEIM — Soil and water conservation practices, as well as related flooding problems in the Chickies Creek Watershed, will be aired at the watershed association's annual meeting on March 23.

The meeting, to which anyone is invited, will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Manheim Community Building, 15 East High Street, Manheim.

Severe flooding in the watershed, especially in Manheim Borough, prompted an extensive three-year study for solutions to the problem by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

The study, which was completed last year, offered few economically feasible solutions except possible clearing of the floodplain through the borough and flood-proofing various properties affected by flood waters.

Included in the other alternatives studied but rejected by SCS were the controversial flood control dams at various locations on the stream north of Manheim. The dams were considered to have too low a cost to benefit ratio to be practical.

Hence it appears that it's up to persons living within the watershed to assume some self-help responsibility to alleviate the flooding problem, according to a spokesman for the association.

This with the technical help in planning for flood control by soil conservation technicians in the county SCS personnel will be on hand at the March 23 meeting.

Farmers in the 23,000-acre watershed already have this assistance from SCS in laying out such soil conservation practices as diversion terraces, contour strips for crops, sod waterways, etc.

Many of these practices qualify for up to 80% cost-sharing by the federal government. In fact, the Chickies Watershed has been cited as a "high priority" area for such cost-sharing benefits.

Such soil conservation practices, of course, not only conserve precious topsoil but also slow down the movement of rain water into the stream and its tributaries, thus also controlling flooding in the process.

The Chickies Creek Watershed is defined as the area drained or affected by the creek itself, and Anything other than BAYMIX® Crumbles is only a one-cow solution to a whole herd problem

THE LOGIC BEHIND WHOLE HERD DEWORMING

In an unwormed dairy herd, all animals deposit worm eggs on the farm and all animals are subject to further recontamination from infective larvae as herd parasitism continues unchecked.

In a herd dewormed only at freshening, an average of 10 out of 12 animals have not been dewormed. Because egg deposition has not been significantly reduced, and because of infective larvae already present on the farm, all animals are subject to heavy further recontamination.

After whole herd deworming with Baymix, egg deposition is dramatically reduced, and as a result herd recontamination is also significantly reduced with herd productive efficiency maintained. In fact, a recent study shows a benefit of 4.8 lbs./milk/cow/day average when cows are dewormed as late as 200 days into lactation despite the fact they were dewormed at freshening.

NFO grain marketer says farmers need system

WARRINGTON — "For any business to be a success, four basic needs must be met.

"There must be capital, management, efficient marketing and a marketing system that allows both seller and buyer a fair profit," Glen Utley, speaker and former Director of the National Farmers Organization, told producers attending a recent day-long grain seminar, sponsored by the National Farmers Organization.

The seminar drew farmers from Eastern Pennsylvania counties and New Jersey, meeting at the Warrington Motor Lodge & Restaurant.

Utley praised the efficiency of the modern farmer. "You got efficient for the buyer, but that alone will not guarantee you a profit so that you stay in business," he said. "You must have a marketing system that is in your control.

"The old marketing system has been the procurement structure of the grain traders. It isn't designed for producers. It isn't helping you as producers. But if you don't have a system of your own, you have to serve theirs.

Since producers have never designed and built a marketing system that would secure a fair profit for their production, the traders of agricultural products were forced to build a procurement system that will supply them an abundant supply, any place, anytime they need it, he said.

What must producers do?

Utley suggested they must begin to live by the three commandments for the preservation of the family farm. (1) Any group that fails to create its own marketing system is doomed to serve another's (2) When a system breaks down and there is no other system to take over, chaos results; (3) If any group holds a service or commodity that is essential to a basic industry and that group is uncontractable, then that service or commodity will be forced into that basic industry by repressive means.

"Producers must build a bargaining block—that is, a large unit of production maintained over an extended period of time, every growing larger and ever extending over a longer period of time. And they must learn to use their own marketing system," Utley explained.

"A marketing system is a procedure whereby the producer transfers the title of the production of a buyer for the purpose of both parties realizing a profit.

"Under the same system," Utley said, "speculators sell a lot of your grain one or two years before you harvest it, and the buyers set your prices. U.S. farmers produce about 12 billion bushels of grain per year, and they are receiving $2 less per bushel than they should.

"One of those dollars is needed to help pay your fertilizer, fuel, etc., and the other dollar should have been your profit.

"Our economy cannot survive as long as its biggest industry is prices under the cost of production. Everyone who sells the grain after it is purchased from the farmer, puts a price on it—everyone but the farmer," he said.

"$168 million was lost to the U.S. economy last year because our grain was sold at $2 under a fair price. That money is being used by foreign buyers and our own corporations to buy our farmers out. Instead of getting that profit, we are forced to turn around and borrow it. Let's turn the traders' system around so that it will work for everyone in the world."

Utley said that to have a complete working system the producer must (1) join an organization that is working for a fair price; (2) build a power base—your production, contracted on a steady

MOVE UP

In Silage Performance

It takes special hybrids for high-performance corn silage. Not just stalk and leaf tonnage that might look impressive. You need lots of ears, lots of energy-rich grain. That extra feeding value can be measured in terms of better milk and beef production.

You can crowd these Funk's G-Hybrids at higher populations and heavy fertilization. The crop will stand up and come through with a good balance between succulent leaves and stalks, and rich grain. A big-tonnage harvest high in Total Digestible Nutrients.

Move up to high performance, high energy Funk's G-Hybrids bred to fit your climate and growing conditions.

With Funk's G you get a combination of extra ear corn production plus leafy succulence for maximum palatability and high protein

HIGH PROTEIN GOOD TASTE

You can depend on Funk's G Silage Hybrids to resist stress and produce consistently high yields. More important — the extra feeding value helps you make more profit.

FINE-TUNED BREEDING AND TESTING FOR NORTHEAST CONDITIONS

New hybrids fresh from Funk breeders are tested and compared every year. Test locations are picked considering soil, climate and elevation to cover the major corn growing areas of the Northeast. Only the best performers are offered to Hoffman customers.

For help in moving up to high performance Funk's G-Hybrids for your farm, see your Hoffman Seed Man or write for the new Hoffman Seed Book.

Parallel parking makes dairy business nicer

SEVEN VALLEYS — A persistent cattle rustler and an aging milking parlor were largely responsible for a decision by Leroy Bupp, Seven Valleys R2, to buck the current dairy-building trend and construct a new stanchion barn.

When a cattle rustler hit twice in six months, stealing six of his best registered Holstein heifers and butchering two in the pasture of the heifer barn over the hill from the main buildings, Bupp considered putting up a more visible heifer-raising facility.

But what he really wanted was a new dairy barn.

"It had always been one of our dreams to milk the Bupplinn herd in a tie-stall barn, where we could give better individual care to each of our registered cows," Bupp reflects.

The old double-three Surge walk-through parlor was almost 25 years old, one of York county's earliest, and both Bupp and his Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers fieldmen agreed that some major remodeling was needed.

On a borrowed drafting table, Bupp began experimenting with designs.

Among his barn construction goals were ways to eliminate the back and knee strain of constant kneeling and bending during milking, the incorporation of labor-saving systems and methods of holding down energy costs. He also figured on tying in the earthenbank manure storage and bunker feeder systems that had been in use for several years with the parlor operation.

After several layouts on paper, and a mockup of stall design in his wagon shed, Bupp was satisfied with a barn plan. His final drawing incorporated angled stalls, raised ten inches above the center alleyway and extending out over a grated gravity-flow-gutter manure handling system.

Bupp took his rough blueprints to Amish builder Elam S. King of Strasburg, who agreed to tackle construction of the angled stall barn.

On Thanksgiving Eve, 1980, the herd was tied in their new home.

For lack of a better name, Penn State dairy specialist Dr. Larry Specht has dubbed the design a "herringbone stanchion barn."

The 82 rubber-matted, angled tie stalls are 72 inches long and range from 48 to 54 inches in width, to accommodate big-bodied older cows as well as younger heifers. Small quantities of well-dried sawdust are used for bedding.

Because Bupp could not locate commercially produced gutter grates to meet his specifications, he fabricated his own of square five-eighths inch steel. The manure gutter is 27 inches wide at the top, sloping beneath the center alley to 34 inches of width at the gutter depth of four feet. The sloped side of the gutter allows for extra manure volume for the bacterial action and gravity flow processes to work.

Ten-inch dams are built into the gutter at intervals of 50 feet, which retain the liquids that keep the bacterial organisms breaking down waste solids. More solid materials float to the top, and are pushed by gravity flow from one dam to the next, moving through the gutter system at the distance of about two stalls per day.

Manure flows into a cross-gutter that also handles milkhouse water,

Parallel parking for cows, in an angled-stall design, and a gravity-flow manure system are two features of the Bupplinn Farms tie-stall then into a receiving room with a large ventilating fan, and finally flowing into the storage pond. Fans at both ends of the gutter ventilate odors and are an integral part of the barn's ventilating system.

"Contrary to what we might believe in this country, this manure system is not a new one," says Bupp. "European dairy farms have had them for years."

To cut down on the use of high-energy fans for ventilation, Bupp designed five three-by-three foot ceiling vents spaced through the barn's 220-foot length, to carry air up through the barn attic and out cupolas on the roof. If necessary, fans could later be installed up in the plywood vents, reducing fan noises to a minimum.

barn. The Bupps will host an open house for their new barn this Friday.

Stall angling in the barn also extends to the feedway, where cows are fed on a glazed tile trough.

With stalls projecting out over the grated manure gutter, milkers can be hooked up to the pipeline and attached to the udders with a minimum of bending and kneeling between animals.

spaced along the block walls, admitting maximum amounts of light and ventilation, and large doors open at both ends of the structure for additional air flow and equipment access.

Six box stalls were included for cows getting special care. Each pen has its own tie-stall section, for feeding and milking, built over the grated gutter to reduce the amount of clean-up needed in the bedded area.

A DeLaval milking system of two-inch stainless pipeline and two-inch vacuum line runs just above the loun-area of the cows, with a plug-in above each animal.

The eight DV300 units are attached to the udders from the side exposed by the stall angling, and two milkers finish the 82-head in ninety minutes.

A Fre-Heater exchanger draws the warmth of the cooling milk from the 1500-gallon bulk tank to pre-heat water for the milking system wash cycles, helping to cut some of the hot water energy cost.

Friday, March 20, beginning at 10:30 a.m., the Bupp's will host the York County manure management meeting. Penn State and local extension staffers will discuss the manure handling systems incorporated into the design. A general public open house will follow the session.

The Bupp farm is located about eight miles south of York, between Exits 2 and 3 of Interstate 83, off Ridge View Road, just east of old Route 111, the York-Baltimore road.

Fulton Grange holds regular meeting

OAKRYN — Fulton Grange No. 66 met in regular session Monday at the Grange Hall in Oakryn. The Master, Thomas C. Galbreath, presided at the business section.

Fulton Grange will be host for the Lancaster County Pomona Grange No. 71 spring meeting Saturday, April 11, 8 p.m. instead of the third Saturday of April.

Fulton Grange gave a $50 donation to the Solanco Medical Scholarship Fund. Harry Baker was appointed chairman of ticket sales for the Grange's annual turkey supper April 4.

The Master gave a report of the Pennsylvania State Grange regional conference held at West Chester. Five people from this Grange attended. He also reported attending the Solanco School District long range planning meeting.

Clifford Holloway Jr., chairman of the tour committee, reminded the members to get their reservations in for the one-day tour to Tangier Island May 23rd.

In other business the men made plans to remove a tree from the hall grounds March 14. The Grange also voted to have a piano tuned.

Mrs. J. Stanley Stauffer Jr. presented the program which opened with group singing "The Grange Is Marching On."

She then presented Ronald Althoff, a member of the Solanco Senior High School faculty in the Agricultural Department, who accompanied the following FFA members who are members of the Solanco Parliamentary Procedure Team: Doug Hershberger, Ken Scott, Leon and Tina Tadych, Jack Heidelbaugh, Brent Holzhauser, Tom Herr and Ken Miller. These students put on a very fine demonstration of conducting their business meeting. They will be competing in county-wide competition.

Mrs. Stauffer conducted a game in which Richard Holloway modelled a shirt adorned with 35 items all farmers should have at hand, and all were to list them. Edward Zug listed the most.

The next meeting will be held March 23.

DER releases study on state soil erosion

HARRISBURG — Soil erosion is a major concern to most of Pennsylvania's 66 conservation districts, according to the publication "Direction for the 80's" released by the State Conservation Commission and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources' Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation.

A copy of the new limited-edition reference publication was presented to DER Secretary Clifford L. Jones during a meeting of the State Conservation Commission Wednesday. Jones is chairman of the commission.

The publication will be available for public review at local conservation district offices and the Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation office in Harrisburg.

Based on the Commonwealth's soil and water resource plan, the publication is designed to provide direction for a viable soil and water conservation program and to encourage the involvement of local conservation districts and cooperating landowners, agencies and organizations to meet the present demands and future resource needs for an improved social, economic and physical environment for the citizens of the Commonwealth.

According to the publication, soil erosion is a major resource concern in 59 of the 66 conservation districts. Other concerns ranged from population to wetlands.

The publication contains a general outline of each concern, or problem, with steps the bureau and/or commission are considering to meet the individual problems.

For example, it is noted that statewide the average annual soil loss attributed to sheet and rill erosion exceeds 50 million tons. Soil losses from gullying, ditches, stream banks, construction and road banks amount for about another 20 million tons.

Some steps outlined to meet the problem include:

—Offering increased financial and technical aid to critical areas —Improving public awareness through information and education programs.

—Improving enforcement techniques and obtaining more compliance with erosion and sedimentation control regulations.

Because more than 4500 billion gallons of water are used in the state annually, water supply is a

Order 4 April milk to sell at $15.44

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine has announced a Class I milk price of $15.44 per hundredweight for April 1981. This price is up two cents from the March price and is $1.31 above the April 1980 price.

Order No. 4 prices are announced for milk testing 3.5 percent butterfat, f.o.b. plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia, and also within 75 miles from the nearer of Washington, DC or Baltimore, Md.

There is also a six-cent direct-delivery differential applicable to producer milk received at plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia.

Shine announced a Class II milk price of $12.70 per hundredweight for February 1981 and a butterfat differential of 16.9 cents for the month. The Class II milk price is up one cent from the previous month while the butterfat differential is unchanged.

These class prices are based on the February 1981 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $12.66 per hundredweight adjusted to a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for February was $1.4725 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was $.9350 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

basis; (3) learn to use the marketing system for all commodities; and (4) be willing to contract all your production.

"The National Farmers Organization has the transportation and the nationwide system to move your grain to seaports or to contract with U.S. or foreign buyers. N.F.O. takes no title to any production," said Utley.

"Markets need to be 'fed', so our grain needs to be moving all the time. We need to be ready to sell in the earlier part of the price rise. U.S.D.A. figures show that most producers do not sell on a rising market 10% sell as the prices start to drop and 90% of sales are made in the lowest 30% of the drop, as they become frightened by the loss. Buyers do not get much grain until prices start to drop."

Utley invited those present at the seminar to consider marketing their production with N.F.O.,

thereby helping to change the present marketing system and benefiting producers, buyers and consumers and insuring the future of the family farm.

Bill Garges, President of the Bucks County Unit of N.F.O., has planned a meeting of all interested producers at his home, Bristol Rd., Warrington, on Wednesday, May 25 at 8 p.m. For more information, call Bill at 215/348-5514.

concern of 45 districts and water quality in 43 districts

To meet the water quantity concern, the plan recommends that during droughts the State Water Resource Policy Advisory Committee be urged to provide agriculture with its fair share of water in areas of highly competitive use

Water pollution problems are attributable to a variety of sources categorized as point and non-point. The former include sewage discharges, industrial waste discharges and storm or combined storm/sanitary sewer drainage. Non-point sources included discharges of polluted groundwater, stormwater runoff, drainage from abandoned mines, acid rain and agricultural runoff

According to the publication the commission should recommend a policy that non-point pollution control programs be directed to correcting the most serious conditions first, while providing maintenance type services to non-priority areas and protection to high quality waters and exceptional value waters number of districts involved in each are:

Farmland, 43; socio-political, 41; food and fiber production, 41; rural development, 37; flooding, 34; land disposal of organic wastes, 33; recreation, 24; fish habitat, 23; forestry, 21; drainage, 21; wildlife habitat, 19; environment, 18; water management, 13; air quality, seven; and wetlands, five

The Agway DNI feeding program gives these hens the nutrients they need. And without wasting dollars.

The Agway Daily Nutrient Intake (DNI) feeding program gives your birds the nutrients they need for maximum production at the lowest possible cost. The simple and efficient DNI system prevents overfeeding of expensive protein while meeting your hens' daily requirements for amino acids and other nutrients.

MAINTAINS A CONSTANT NUTRIENT LEVEL AS DAILY INTAKE CHANGES.

The idea behind the DNI program is simple: as feed intake varies, change feeds to avoid paying for more nutrition than your birds require

Suppose, for example, your flock is eating 100 grams of feed per bird daily (22 lbs./100 birds). Under the DNI program, your feed would be

Agway High Layer 1000.

During cold weather, when the birds moved up to 110 grams of feed daily, you'd switch to High Layer 1100+ to maintain daily nutrient intake at the required level. Paying for more protein than necessary can significantly affect the profitability of your business

By monitoring your flock's intake, you'll know when to change feeds (such as Agway High Layer 900 when birds are eating just 90 grams of feed/day, or High Layer 1100+ when birds are consuming 110 grams of feed/day).

Even though your birds' feed intake varies seasonally on the Agway DNI program nutrient intake remains constant provided you change feeds based on intake

YOUR AGWAY POULTRY SPECIALIST CAN HELP SET UP A DNI PROGRAM FOR YOUR OPERATION.

Agway Poultry Enterprise specialists are available to help you set up a DNI program for your operation. You'll find that DNI is simple. All you do is watch your birds' feed intake and adjust feeds accordingly.

So contact your local Agway today for more details on the DNI program—the system that makes sure your birds get the nutrients they need... without wasting dollars.

Stray voltage

being a production problem within the past five years. Shenk, who claims to be the first dealer in Lancaster County and the eastern U.S. to be aware of the problem, contends that 50 to 60 percent of the dairy farms are affected by stray voltage (others say only 20 percent).

"Stray voltage is unpredictable," he says. "Barns may experience it for an hour, and then it will be gone for a day or two. The problem seems to be related to the load demand on power lines and weather conditions."

When asked if stray voltage seems to flare up more on humid days, Shenk replies stray voltage crops up in any kind of weather. "We can get zero readings on damp, dreary days."

According to Fairbank and Craine, stray voltage problems "seem to occur most often in areas where soil conductivity is low and low-resistance grounds are difficult to attain, and under extended drought conditions when all surrounding soil is unusually dry."

In a technical explanation of what possible electrical problems may exist to create the stray voltage situation, the researchers stated:

"A voltage potential — semi-continuous but sometimes transient — may exist between dairy metallic structures or equipment and cow standing surface. The voltages may be alternating current, direct current, or both, superimposed."

The researchers noted even milking parlors that are properly wired to meet modern electrical code requirements still can have small voltages that annoy animals.

"These voltages exist between the metal structures that are bonded to electrical neutral and earth. Feeders, stalls, pipes, framework and other metal objects are normally connected to the electrical neutral."

"Although the neutral is required by code to be properly grounded, it may not be at 'earth' potential elsewhere due to grounding resistance. The parlor concrete floor and floor grates are normally at local earth potential. A 'grounded' neutral may have a voltage sensed by an animal standing on concrete or steel 'earth'."

Fairbank and Craine pointed out research has shown electrical stress will stop dairy heifers from drinking water for eight hours on a hot summer day. Since milk is 86 percent water, cows that aren't drinking won't be producing their potential.

Reports also indicate voltages as low as 0.3 volts are felt to cause anxiety in cows during milking.

The pair of researchers explained the primary source of stray current is voltage differentials.

When water systems, electrical conduits, machinery frames, metal walls and dairy parlor stall hardware are connected to the electrical neutral, there will be no voltage difference between them, thus insuring safety. However, Fairbank and Craine stressed there may be a neutral-to-earth voltage.

"Different voltages may be (Turn to Page A27)

Cows can be subjected to the annoying affects of stray voltage while standing in or around the milking parlor or in milking stalls, making the milking experience an unhappy one. The shaded areas show the most common contact points carrying the misguided current to the cow, as depicted by the Western Regional Agricultural Engineering Services circular, Milking Parlor Metal Structures-to-Earth Voltages.

Researchers indicate the best solution to stray voltage/current problems in the milking parlor is the creation of an "equipotential plane" by electrically bonding metal components, steel posts, framing and concrete reinforcing. Reinforcing lap joints and grate frames should be welded, too.

measured from metal structures interconnected by the neutral to different earth points although all of these metallic structures connected to the neutral will be at almost the same voltage level."

The researchers explained although the stall framework, cow-contact equipment and milk pipeline system are bonded with the neutral at the service entrance, the floor grate over the manure gutter, the reinforcing steel in the cow platform and the milker's pit, and the stall support posts may be in direct contact with earth under the parlor — a different potential level.

"Different surfaces in the parlor or electrically discontinuous parts of the stall and milking system can all be grounded yet can be at different voltage potentials," they said. "Current can flow through an animal touching different voltage points (hooves standing on earthed parts and body contact with metal feeder, milking equipment and stall frames)."

"The milker usually is not aware of this small voltage because he is well-insulated by rubber boots and has a higher resistance (less effective) hand electrical contact to the metal. The animal, with moist and sensitive mouth, hooves, and udder, is a good path for electrical current," the researchers noted. "Some dairymen have detected such voltages when fresh cuts on the hand have exposed sensitive nerve ends."

According to Shenk, cows suffering the anxiety of stray voltage in the milking parlor or stanchion stall tend to hold up 5 to 20 percent of their milk. This withdrawal of milk ietdown, he suggested, can lead to mastitis where subclinical problems are lurking.

"The stray voltage distorts the teat, causing the sphincter muscle to invert. This damage lasts for the entire lactation, and in some cows the inversion won't turn back," says Shenk. "This opens the teat end to accept outside bacteria through the streak canal."

Once a dairy producer has eliminated all the usual causes for nervous cows with low production, how can the farmer check for stray voltage?

According to Shenk, stray voltage detection falls back into the dealers lap, although the majority of dealers are not familiar with the problem yet.

Other stray voltage detectives might also include electric company technicians, county agents, and electrical contractors.

Instead of a magnifying glass, these detectives study the problem with a multi-range voltmeter/milliammeter, measuring different voltage potentials, from bulk tank to floor drain, drinking cup to gutter grate, etc.

Shenk notes electrical codes allow a 3 to 4 volt tolerant level. "But, we've got problems if we get a 0.3 volt reading when measuring the different plane levels in a parlor," he says.

What can be done if stray voltage is above the levels felt to be tolerated by dairy cows?

According to Shenk, rewiring will solve the problems of 75 percent of the stray voltage incidence. This rewiring will insure proper grounds and will bond the various surfaces in the milking area to the grounding conductor to create one voltage plane.

In some cases, it may be necessary for the farmer to invest in an isolating transformer, purchased from the power company, to correct the problem.

Water conservation kit available

LEBANON — More than 50 homeowners, municipality officials, farmers, and well drillers turned out recently for the Lebanon County Rural Development Committee meeting.

Highlighting the program was a talk by Tom Fiddler of the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, providing tips on how to conserve water. He announced the availability of a water conservation kit through D.E.R. designed to save water in the bath and kitchen.

The kit includes a plastic bag which holds 3 to 4 quarts of water.

According to the D.E.R. spokesman, the kit can save about 200 gallons of water every day. The kit costs only 50 cents.

To order the kits, write Water Conservation Kit, Box 1467, Evangelical Press Building, Harrisburg, PA 17120, or contact the local Conservation District office.

Agriculture plays a vital role in the growth, economy and production of our nation. We're proud to honor all the hardworking people in the agri-business... and to see this industry get the recognition it deserves!

Power Play son commands top price

HARRISBURG — A sudden snow storm deterred few buyers at the Angus Breeding Sale held March 5 at the Pennsylvania Farm Equipment Exposition in the Farm Show Complex, Harrisburg. The sale grossed $82,855.

The 67 uniform, high quality Angus cattle offered averaged $1275 per head. Ten bulls averaged $1943, while 57 females averaged $1160.

the successful bidder. Instant Replay, is the son of "Power Play," 1979 Supreme Champion Angus Bull at the All-American Angus Futurity.

A York County farm from Glen Rock consigned the top selling Angus female Rishels Edlyn Farm sold their March 1980 heifer calf for $3,000 to R.E. Stitzel of Shelby, North Carolina. The calf was the daughter of "Bon View Connection."

Order 4 base $14.18

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine Tuesday announced a February 1981 base milk price of $14.18 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $12.57.

The weighted average February price is $14.07 and the butterfat differential for the month is 16.9 cents. The base milk price increased six cents from the previous month and is $1.13 higher than last February's base price.

The advertising withholding rate, which is deducted from the base and excess milk price only and not the weighted average price, was 13 cents a hundredweight this month compared to seven cents a year ago.

The gross value of producer milk during February was $64.3 million, compared to $56.2 million a year ago. A total of $595.5 thousand was deducted for advertising and promotion in February 1981 contrasted to $305.6 thousand in February 1980.

Shine said producer receipts totaled 458.1 million pounds during February; on a daily basis, this was an increase of 2.3 percent from the previous month, and 8.7 percent above last February.

Class I producer milk totaled 228.7 million pounds and accounted for 49.93 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, down from 51.06 percent in January and well below the 54.56 Class I utilization percentage last February.

Base milk accounted for 85.35 percent of total producer milk receipts in February, down from 88.03 percent a year earlier.

Schuylkill extension meets legislators

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN — Schuylkill County Extension Executive Committee members met with state legislators at a banquet in Harrisburg as part of the fourth annual State Capital Day.

J. Allan Shoener, County Extension Director, said that the banquet, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations gave committee members the opportunity to visit with legislators and discuss the impact of extension programs carried out across the state and at the county level.

Schuylkill County delegates who took part in the day's activities were Paul Zukovich, R1, Tamaqua; and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Heisler, also from R1, Tamaqua.

State Capital Day is an annual event that provides PCCEA the chance to thank legislators for their support. The organization is comprised of representatives of county extension executive committees who serve in an advisory capacity to local Extension programs.

In Schuylkill County and across the state, PCCEA functions primarily to provide advice to Penn State so extension service can develop programs that will improve the quality of life for Pennsylvanians.

At the Legislative banquet, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell, welcomed the committee members and read a statement sent by Governor Dick Thornburgh.

fertilizer can get your corn crop off to a super start:

It has a high concentration of water-soluble Phosphorus that gets to young seedlings quickly. Helps plants establish a good root system — the starting point for top yields. Its quick-acting and long-lasting Nitrogen team up to feed the young plants for full yield potential, continually from sprouting to harvest.

This is the Starter Special that corn growers know from good experience. It's highly effective as a banded starter. And it's SAFE — no chance of ammonia damage to tender, young seedlings when used as a "pop up" and applied directly with the seed at 50 lbs./acre.

How can we fit UNIPEL 13-34-10 into your corn fertility program?

The PROVEN Fickes MASTER-MATIC SILO SYSTEM

Master-Matic is the proven automatic silage handling system first introduced in the eastern United States by Fickes over a year ago. There's no longer any need to enter the silo. Once filled the silo can be unloaded from top to bottom—automatically. The Silo-Matic Continuous-door Unloader moves down the continuous doors to unload haylage, corn silage or high moisture corn. It operates effectively, efficiently and without mechanical problems.

The Fickes-Master-Matic Silo System offers you CONVENIENCE—Puts an end to the chore of climbing the silo every few days.

TIME-SAVING—Keeps you out of the silo so you can spend your time to more profitable advantage.

SILO-MATIC CONTINUOUS-DOOR SILO UNLOADER
This exclusive unloader design has been in use on continuous door silos for more than a year. It has been thoroughly tested and proved under farm operating conditions with haylage, corn silage and high moisture corn. The Silo-Matic Continuous Door Silo Unloader automatically moves down the silo from door to door. The gas vented stays in perfect alignment with the chute door. As it moves down, it seals the door against the silo wall, retaining an ideal position for maximum silage unloading efficiency.
There are no principles of gravity involved. The unloader operates by gravity. The electrical cable is plugged into a power source at the top of the silo. The electrical cable automatically uncoils as the unloader moves down the silo.

There's one very simple reason why your new compact Diesel tractor should be Yanmar: we offer you features you can't get from anybody else.

Exclusive Power Shift

The shift is on to Yanmar because Yanmar has the shift—the power shift no other compact diesel tractor offers.

The Yanmar Power Shift lets you shift on the go without clutching. Yanmar's power shift gives you the ease of automatic without the 25 to 30% power loss of hydraulic or hydrostatic type transmissions. You save time. You save effort. Every working hour becomes more productive. More rewarding.

Live PTO (Power take-off)

With a regular PTO your attachment is not driven unless your tractor is moving. That means uneven work until your tractor gets up to operating speed.

Yanmar's 2 speed Live PTO keeps your attachments moving at full power even when your tractor is stopped. You get more consistent work and sure going through the toughest spots.

Diesel Economy

As the world's largest manufacturer of small diesel engines, Yanmar gives you time-tested, fuel-squeezing diesel economy. Smooth, quiet running Yanmar Diesel power means no electrical ignition system to go out of wack, no spark plugs to replace—and above all, lower fuel bills.

Dependability

Performance proven in the toughest jobs around the world, Yanmar Tractors are built to last. And last. Join the new shift to Yanmar, and find out what a compact diesel tractor should be.

PUT MORE PROFIT IN YOUR ALFALFA.

Whether you grow for a cash crop or to feed your own livestock, you can't afford weeds in your alfalfa. They shorten stand life, lower protein content, lower TDN and reduce overall digestibility and palatability of your hay. In short, excessive weed growth just plain picks your pocket.

ORTHO PARAQUAT CL herbicide burns back weeds on contact. Apply PARAQUAT during the winter to dormant established stands. It's exceptionally broad spectrum and destroys weeds with extraordinary speed. Apply PARAQUAT with ORTHO X-77 Spreader.

DANGER: PARAQUAT is highly toxic if swallowed and should be kept out of the reach of children. To prevent accidental ingestion, never transfer to food, drink or other containers. Read the label carefully and follow all directions, danger statements and worker safety rules.

Restricted Use Pesticide. Use all chemicals only as directed.

ELVERSON — Five students from the Twin Valley Future Farmers of America placed high in the state project book contest.

In the dairy heifer category, there were 12 entries. Steve Kearns received a silver medal. Steve is the 17-year-old son of Mr. & Mrs. James Kearns. Steve owns two Brown Swiss heifers which he shows at summer shows and fairs. This particular category and other production books are judged on the basis of their improvement projects, efficiency, neatness, and accuracy.

Also receiving silver medals were Tim Kurtz, 17-year-old son of Mr. & Mrs. Calvin Kurtz; Bill Kirk, 16-year-old son of Mr. & Mrs. Robert Kirk; and Jeff Wolfe, 17-year-old son of Mr. & Mrs. Thomas Wolfe. Each of these kept records of daily routines and duties in the On-Farm work experience book. In the contest Eric Wright, 17-year-old son of Mr. & Mrs. John Wright received a bronze medal. The work experience books are judged on the number of hours worked, money earned, and the accuracy.

The Twin Valley chapter earned a second place gold in the scrapbook contest. Wade Bernard, chapter historian, worked throughout the year organizing and designing our scrapbook. The scrapbook consists of articles from prior contests, pictures of activities, and outstanding members. It serves as a pictorial history of chapter activities on a calendar year basis. Scrapbooks are judged on organization, neatness, creativity, and the ability to tell the FFA story.

The Mason-Dixon Polled Hereford Association was formed in January. The organization's next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, April 7 at Garrett Community College.

The fledgling group promoting "The Big Bold Breed" has planned an ambitious year, and has already scheduled its first Field

Day and Annual Meeting to be held June 6

In addition to membership for pure-bred and commercial breeders memberships are available to interested youth and associate memberships are available.

For more information on joining the Mason-Dixon Polled Hereford Association contact William Buser, P.O. Box 3025, Swanton, Maryland 21561.

TEMIK®

It pays off in better yields.
The proof is in the performance.

Potato growers are proving it.

TEMIK provides superior aphid control, preventing the spreading of potato leafroll virus (which can later show up in costly tuber necrosis), and protects against Colorado potato beetles, leafhoppers and fleabeetles — even organo-phosphate resistant species. TEMIK aldicarb also protects AGAINST NEMATODES AND SUPPRESSES Verticillium wilt.

So, don't take a chance. Get the best pesticide you can buy. Check with your pesticide supplier, or your neighbor. Then try TEMIK in your field. You'll see why the proof is in the performance.

Farm Expo

Clarence Weiler, of Weiler Bros., Inc., of R1 Ephrata, said that a bunch of new customer prospects were secured.

"It was slow, but those people there expressed quite a bit of interest. We'd definitely go back next year."

But Dick Toriello, of Lancaster

Truck Bodies, had a different assessment.

"In a word, it was horrible," he said.

"The amount of time and effort that's put into it were not worth the possible returns."

"Exposure is ultra-important in our type of business and it's just not there."

"I have serious doubts about it next year."

One of the larger exhibitors that did not contract for space this year was Penn Jersey Harvestore Systems, Inc. of New Holland.

"We were there two years and were extremely disappointed," Bob McLean, of Penn Jersey, said. "We just didn't have the response to justify the expense."

Two firms that were satisfied with the Expo were Farmer Boy Ag, of Myerstown, and Stauffer Diesel, Inc., of New Holland.

"I'd say we were satisfied with the response," said Tony Stauffer.

"But there was a problem with having to move out before Sunday. Going back depends on whether we get space at the main Farm Show."

"It was practical to go," said Gene Martin, of Farmer Boy Ag.

"It was not the turnout we had hoped for and nothing to write home to mother about. But we got a half-dozen good leads and are satisfied."

Fidelity Electric Company, Inc., of Lancaster, and Frey Bros. Mfg., of Quarryville, were two more casualties of the Expo this year.

"The reason we decided against showing this year was the relatively poor attendance," explained Jim Cunningham, of Fidelity.

"We tried two years and did not have good results," Ernie Frey said.

"There's not enough interest. We have much better results at shows like Ag Progress Days."

Robert Martin, of Terre Hill Silo Co., Inc., summed up his feelings in this way:

"All in all, I'd have to say that I'd be just as happy if it didn't exist."

"The reason we attend is because we believe the competition will be there."

"If I had to give an answer now about attending next year, I'd have to say no."

Tom Snyder, of K. and S. Inc., of R1 Quarryville, is an exhibitor that would return to the Expo.

"Attendance was off a bit," he said, "but the people I talked to came for a purpose."

"You didn't have a lot of city people walking around."

"We found it worthwhile."

Dave Horst, of Hollinger's Farm Market, Ephrata, which had garden equipment at the Expo, is an exhibitor on the borderline.

"We got some leads but for the amount of money I'm not sure it was worth it. It's hard to say."

Another Expo dropout was the Long Mfg. Co., of Mechanicsburg. Still carried on the state's exhibitor list, Long hadn't shown up since the first year.

Chris Hennessey explained that it is held too close to the Farm Show and just didn't justify the expense.

In addition to declining exhibitor numbers, spectator attendance was sparse.

The opening day snowstorm didn't help on Thursday, March 5. But little improvement was noted on Friday.

For example, only a handful of people, besides participants, were noted at the Keystone Classic Swine Show. Attendance in the Little Arena did pick up a bit for the Draft Horse Show and Sale.

Berks ASCS to discuss crop insurance

LEESPORT — A special meeting will be held on March 31, at 1 p.m. at the Berks County Agriculture Center to explain the 1981 programs.

On hand will be William Baumgartner, ASCS District Director, who along with the ASCS office staff, will discuss the programs available for next year. We will also feature William Myers and William Foose from the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation to explain all the details of crop insurance for oats, corn and soybeans for 1981 and for barley and wheat for 1982.

Any farmers who suffered a crop loss in the last few years should try to attend this meeting and discover what crop insurance has to offer. Rates are available at the ASCS office in the Berks Co. Ag Center and we are now taking applications for 1981 crops.

The deadline for purchasing insurance on the spring seeded crops is April 15 for oats, April 30 for corn and May 10 for soybeans.

State funds available for crime victims

HARRISBURG — As follow up to a recent Lancaster Farming series on rural crime, it is important to know there is help available for victims of crime.

There is an office in state government known as the Crime Victim's Compensation Board, comprised of three members. Lancaster County's Marvin Miller chairs the board, headquartered in Harrisburg as part of the Governor's Office of General Council. Another office is found in Philadelphia.

According to Miller, the Crime Victims Compensation Board replaces losses to victims due to bodily injury suffered during a criminal act. He stated the Board covers the victim's costs for hospital care, doctors, and therapy, along with other services not covered by the victim's insurance.

A victim who loses earnings, or, in the case where death results from the crime, support is lost, is eligible to receive assistance from the Board, Miller explained.

"Let's say the injury suffered by the victim results in his not being able to go back to work for several weeks. He receives public assistance funds in the amount of $186 dollars, but his actual earning loss amounts to $400. The difference between the two amounts is funded by the Board."

There is a limit to the state's generosity, even in the case of crime victims, however Miller pointed out there is a $25,000 maximum on the amount of funds a victim can receive from the Board for both medical attention and loss of earnings or support. The upper limits for loss of earnings and support are $10,000 and $15,000 respectively.

Other limitations decide who is eligible to receive payments. Miller chuckled as he explained the victim must be innocent of the crime — their conduct should not have contributed to the injury.

"In other words, we won't cover the costs of injury for someone found after investigation to be a victim of a shooting while passing drugs, or for the town bully who got messed up after looking for and finding a fight," he said.

Miller added victims receiving compensation must cooperate with law enforcement officials and be willing witnesses if the offender is apprehended and charges are levied.

And the victim cannot be related to the offender through common law or otherwise, Miller said. "We don't pay for domestic violence injuries," he observed.

Miller stated victims of crimes which are being investigated by police officers should be given a claim form by the law enforcers. The victim then has a year to file claim for compensation, including all the bills resulting from the crime with the claim form.

"If in the event the police fail to supply the claim forms to a victim, or if for some reason the victim cannot file claim within one year, the time limit could be extended to two years," Miller noted.

Since the Board's formation in 1977, over $2.5 million have been awarded to victims of assault, robberies, homicide, reckless endangerment, etc., reported Miller.

"In theory, this program hasn't cost the Pennsylvania taxpayer a single nickel," Miller stressed.

"Since the Board's creation, criminals convicted of committing crimes such as those covered by the Crime Compensation Board must pay to the court a $10 unimposed cost. This money goes directly into the State Treasury which funds our program."

Miller said during the 1980 Fiscal year, it cost $1,311,000 to run the entire Crime Compensation Board — $253,000 for administration costs with the remainder being paid out in compensation. The Board Chairman added the $10 fees collected from similar crimes amounted to $1,829,000.

Miller conceded most of the money paid out in compensations went to areas in the state with high population densities, however he observed there had been 15 cases in both Lancaster and York

Counties and 12 cases in Lebanon County.

"Our biggest problem is making sure victims are notified about the program," Miller concluded —SM

Introducing a guaranteed fixed-rate loan for farmers.

The Crop Builder
13.75%

It's the American Bank advantage.

American Bank has been committed to helping farmers since the turn of the century. Because of our close association, we are aware that 1980 was a very bad year for you. So we're making a special limited 4-week offer of a fixed-rate Crop Builder Loan. This loan can be used to finance the growing of field crops for later sale or for use on the farm as feed.

The advantages of our Crop Builder Loan are many. Once your loan has been approved, you'll be assured of getting the money you need, when you need it. And since the rate is fixed, you won't have to worry about the volatility of floating interest rates. This will help you in determining the cost of producing a crop and will reduce your risk in the crop investment.

The Crop Builder Loan is available to all farmers who are eligible. You don't presently have to be an American Bank customer. To take advantage of this offer, contact Gene Richard or Bill Hughes in our Agri-business Department at (215) 375-5993.

Commitment to farmers. It's the American Bank advantage.

the existing Ag Lands Condemnation Approval Board as referee in condemnation cases.

Participation in an ag area would be available voluntarily to landowners within the jurisdiction of any governing body.

"Addition or deletion of land in the agricultural area shall only occur after seven years or whenever the agricultural area is subject to review by the local governing body," the bill now reads. Prior versions provided an eight year review.

Landowners who wish to withdraw their land from an ag area "shall notify the local governing unit of their intent at least 120 days before the end of the seventh year," HB 143 specifies.

The bill now requires individual written notice be given to all municipalities in an ag area, the proposed condemnor, and the owners of the land proposed to be condemned, should an agency wish to take land located in an ag district.

The bill has the support of the State Grange, Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, and Farmers Union.

On Monday, Rep. David R. Wright, Clarion, introduced an amendment to the Ag Commodities Marketing Act which is supported by 17 co-sponsors and the Farmers Union.

The measure would change current procedure on voting for commodity checkoffs, promotions, and similar programs in several significant ways:

First, it would eliminate block voting by cooperatives;

Second, it would require a two-thirds majority by number, rather than a simple majority, for passage of a checkoff;

Also, it would reduce the review period for such programs from five to three years.

Checkoff programs in Pennsylvania date back to the Apple Marketing Act of 1961 (Act 179), amended in 1968 to include all commodities.

Act 63, passed in March 1970, changed the majority vote requirement to a two-thirds vote. The next year Act 102 rolled voting back to a simple majority, allowed block voting, and established a five year lifetime for orders.

While Farmers Union is strongly behind the measure, the Grange and some co-ops — especially dairy co-ops — can be expected to oppose Wright's bill.

Also in the works is specific language for a multiflora rose bill. Lawmakers expect to have that completed by April 1.

Current thinking is to establish a noxious weed review board, along the lines of the one defeated last year.

But the new bill would include language to declare both multiflora rose and autumn olive noxious weeds immediately, says Grange Master Charles Wismer.

Still sidelined is SB 151, Clarence F. Manbeck's Family Farm Security Bill. At present, lawmakers are looking for a way around asking $10 million from the general fund. A bond float to support the Fredericksburg senator's program seems to have the upper hand right now.

Lehigh Valley to meet

ALLENTOWN — Bylaw changes aimed at insuring adequate board representation for increasing numbers of milk shippers will be considered by common stockholders and members of Lehigh Valley Farmers at the dairy's annual meeting March 19 in Lancaster.

Proposed changes would allow the board of directors discretion in forming new districts and would allow flexibility in determining the need for at-large directors.

Initially, the plan would accommodate a block of shippers in the New York area where numbers have grown from 43 to 68 in the past 18 months.

Another proposed change would require the annual meeting of each district be held during the first three weeks of November. Currently the district meetings are held just prior to the stockholders' meeting.

Members also will hear "bottom line results" of a major restructuring of the dairy which took place at last year's meeting.

Attention, Guernsey Breeders

LANCASTER — The locatin of the 50th Anniversary Banquet of the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association has been changed to the Host Farm Resort for the same dates, March 20 and 21.

The change occurred as a result of a conflict in schedules at the Brunswick Motor Inn - the original location - according to Ruth Ann Benedict, assistant to business manager Lee Yost.

"The speakers, the meetings and the banquet will all follow the original schedule of events," she said. "The only thing to change is the location."

And as a reminder to all Guernsey Breeders, the registration begins at 10:30 a.m. and the banquet at 7 p.m. on Friday. Saturday morning's meeting will also be at the Host Farm at 8:30 a.m.

From there everyone will journey to the Guernsey Pavilion for a noon luncheon and the cattle sale.

The Host Farm is located about two miles west of the Guernsey Sales Pavilion on Route 30.

Volunteers needed for parasite program

DOVER, Del. — The Delaware Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Delaware Extension Service, is sponsoring a parasite release demonstration this summer. The program will use Pediobius, a parasitic wasp, to control Mexican bean beetles in soybeans.

This control method has been used effectively in Delaware for a number of years now.

For further information or to volunteer, contact Bob Hickman or Lynn Harrison at the Delaware Department of Agriculture 302/736-4813

Delaware county extension agents or department of agriculture representatives can offer information on growing the nurse crops. Deadline for participation is March 20.

GOOD MANAGEMENT PROVIDES OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE 80's!

STAYING AHEAD OF THE PACK

The competition for money, profit and success is fierce. Farming is no longer a game where average is profitable. Nor are high prices enough. Increased production by itself will not be enough.

As feed costs rise and exporters compete for a large share of U.S. production, one of the great opportunities for dairymen and livestock producers is the chance to control more of their own destiny by producing more of their own feedstuff. The stay-ahead farmer of tomorrow will be more self-sufficient. If nothing else, economics will demand it.

THE FUTURE BELONGS TO FARMERS WHO ARE WILLING TO MAKE THINGS HAPPEN INSTEAD OF WAITING FOR THEM TO HAPPEN.

We, at Penn-Jersey HARVESTORE® Systems are proud that we have had a part in introducing thousands of top American farmers to the A.O. Smith HARVESTORE System. We pledge that we will continue to give you quality products, backed up with modern, technical information from our staff of dedicated, experienced specialists. Furthermore, we provide skilled service technicians to insure that your reliable equipment will function profitably and economically.

- ★ MODERN HARVESTORE® STRUCTURES oxygen limiting, bottom-unloading for processing home-grown forages and moist grains.
- ★ AUTOMATION processes, distributes and feeds livestock.
- ★ SLURRYSTORE SYSTEMS store, protect and deliver liquid slurry manure at peak fertilizer values at farmer's convenience.

YOUR BEST OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE 80's

1. FEED COST CONTROL - Quality, home-grown forages and grains, coupled with labor-saving automation, reduce energy needs.
2. HIGHER PROFITS FOR GRAIN THROUGH LIVESTOCK - Mounting transportation costs mean local livestock farmers have a natural market potential with less competition from outside areas.
3. EXPAND UP, NOT OUT - Land prices and cash rent will continue to increase. Preserving more tons of rich nutrients through modern HARVESTORE® Systems means more animals per acre than old-fashioned systems.
4. BEAT THE AVERAGE - Not only do you have to outperform the average manager, but you have to improve your market timing. Reducing costs by 5%-10% may spell the difference between profit or breaking even.
5. THINK POSITIVE — Positive thinking is contagious and it's the one single thing that will allow many farmers to prosper when others continue to find reasons why "It can't be done." With positive action your farm business will grow and so will your self-esteem.

THE ONE
IS NOW!

LET US SHOW YOU, WITH NO OBLIGATION ON YOUR PART TO BUY, WHY OUR SYSTEMS PROVIDE THE CONVENIENCE, LABOR SAVING AND PROFITABILITY THAT YOU NEED FOR THE 80's.

Early Riser Planters

The row unit is designed to create an ideal seed environment.

SET THE DIAL FOR PRECISION DEPTH CONTROL

Equalizing wheels gauge the opener depth on both sides of the furrow. Special tires trap moist soil on furrow sides.

The patented furrow firming point compacts the soil and forms a narrow "V" for optimum seed placement.

The press wheel with center rib insures optimum soil/seed contact eliminates any moisture robbing air pockets and helps early emergence.

Moist soil from both sides of the furrow is placed over the seed by the twin covering disks.

Make every bite right.

Ensilmixer® feed mixer, with scales, and a Jamesway®
TMR system.

You can increase production Reduce feed costs And improve labor efficiency All, when you use an Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, by Oswalt® to round out your Jamesway Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system (including silage distributor unloaders, conveyors and cattle feeders) Or, use it with any mechanized feeding system Whether you prefer the stationary, trailer mounted or truck mounted model, it's a real profit building management tool

Unique mixing pattern blends feed thoroughly Three augers move feed from front to back and side to side Reverse flighting at both ends lets feed fall freely for recirculation or discharge by the bottom auger Uniformly mixes even partial loads

Precisely weighs ingredients Accurate weighing means consistent, balanced rations, eliminates waste Lets you calculate the amount of feed needed and mix that much Weigh bar system is standard, electronic scales optional

That's why the Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, and TMR feeding system are right for you as well as your cattle And, can help make farming just a little bit better Ask your Jamesway Power Choring dealer

GUNITe Silo Relining & Repairs

Extensive tests have been conducted on Gunitite. Below are some of the properties of Gunitite:

1. Excellent bonding
2. High Density
3. Extreme strength and hardness
4. High resistance to absorption

The excellent physical properties of the material are due to the water content being only the amount needed to satisfy chemical hydration. Reseal and re-strengthen your silo with Gunitite.

Macrame, ancient art come to life

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

When Charlotte Charles decided it was time to do something for herself, she enrolled in a night class at Hempfield High School and found herself becoming immersed in the ancient craft of macrame. Since last year when she first learned, she has created many projects, some of which enhance her R1 Columbia home and many of which have been given as gifts to lucky friends and relatives.

Charlotte says, "Macrame is the only thing I do and I really enjoy it." As the wife of Jim Charles, sales representative for American Breeders Service, and mother to Melissa, 11, Mike, 10, and Matt, 4, she of course does many other things, but macrame has become her one craft.

She makes it sound simple when she states, "If you can make a square knot you can macrame. I couldn't even tie a square knot when I started." Since then, however, she has learned to tie "lots of different kinds of knots" and feels comfortable reading directions and understanding new ones.

Knots are the basis for macrame, of course, and the uniformity of pressure on the knots is what gives the final project the symmetry which characterizes most macrame projects. Charlotte points out, "Knots should be tied gently. Your knots will always be the same, so you don't want someone else working on your project."

Charlotte also notes that macrame does not have to be expensive, although some materials can be costly. All you really need to start is cord and some pins to hold the cord in place as you work. Charlotte says a board designed for macrame is helpful because it provides a surface for pinning and has measurements. Special pins can be purchased to anchor the ropes before the knotting begins.

She says all necessary supplies can be readily purchased in craft stores in the Lancaster area. She adds that cord comes in all colors and thicknesses, which account for the wide variety of projects you can create without having vast experience.

There are many books available on the subject both for purchase at craft stores and from the library. Charlotte already has acquired a variety of instruction books and in her spare time studies them and plans her future projects. "I could spend hours looking," she states.

She recommends that anyone wishing to learn macrame take a class or learn from someone who is presently doing it. "It's a hobby for everybody. It's very simple and goes way back," she says.

While macrame has recently enjoyed a revival in popularity, it is indeed an ancient art used by all civilizations for thousands of years. The art knew few boundaries with early examples of knotting having been discovered in a Finnish peat bog, dating from 6850 B.C. It has also been found in areas as widespread as Egypt and Peru. The Inca Indians used the knots instead of a written language to record numbers and messages.

American Indians used similar knot records to count the days of the week, bearing out the fact that in the earliest days of knotting the knots were primarily useful, not decorative.

Decorative knots were found mostly in the Far East, with temple hangings in Japan and China having very ornate knots. These were then incorporated into elaborate clothing and other furnishings and exported to the Middle East where Crusaders found them and carried them back to Europe. After the Crusaders, knots were often combined with fringes, with the fringe either added to the cloth or the weaver simply knotting the fringed warp threads.

The first lace pattern books appeared in the sixteenth century, and these included directions for a knotting point, which is a coarse lace resembling macrame.

In the eighteenth century fine lace became a symbol of wealth, so few macrame pieces remain. In the nineteenth century interest was renewed because of sailors who spent long months at sea and worked on fashioning hundreds of articles from the readily available

This selection of projects made with through the simple combinations of knots. macrame gives an idea of the variety possible rope on the ship. These sailors, though often jealous of their knowledge of knots, traded some special knots and learned new ones wherever they traveled throughout the world. Often their products had combinations of many knots in the designs.

In England at the end of the nineteenth century, children were taught to tie knots by tying strings to a wooden frame. From the age of five they were taught simple knots. Fancy macrame was very fashionable among the wealthy of this period. Victorian ladies with leisure time knotted elaborate pieces used for table covers, bench covers or seat covers. Eventually this craft became unfashionable and other crafts gained in enthusiasm.

Now the enthusiasm is back, and Charlotte is one of the most enthusiastic.

One of her favorite macrame projects is making pocketbooks because they are also practical. She was so pleased with her progress and the results, that she chose one to enter at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show in January. She didn't win, perhaps because macrame is judged in a category with many other crafts, but her enthusiasm remains and she plans to enter something in the local shows this fall.

The purse is hand washable, so with the heavy knots will be very durable and usable. Materials for the pocketbook totalled about $10.00.

She has made plant holders and says, "There are a hundred dif-

One of Charlotte Charles' most involved projects was this knotted wreath which is composed of 540 square knots worked in series of four. It took about 25 hours to complete.

A macrame board is a useful accessory to anyone beginning a project in knotting. This shows clearly the use of pins in the board to anchor the cords before proceeding.

A square knot is the first basic knot to be learned in macrame, and this shows the first step toward completing the square knot.

ferent plant hangers." She has made a variety of other gifts, but her most involved project to date was a knotted wreath which she estimates took about 25 hours to complete. The wreath is a work of art, consisting of a series of square knots done in groups of four. There are 540 square knots in the finished project, Charlotte says, "I enjoyed doing it. It was exciting to see things coming out as I worked."

So far she has enjoyed attending craft shows and getting ideas from others. She says, "I try to always have something to work at. I haven't made anything to sell, and I think it would be hard to set a price, but some day I hope I can sell some pieces."

She has taught her two oldest children to macrame, and she has shared her enthusiasm by demonstrating the craft for the fifth grade class at Farmdale Elementary School where her children attend.

While she continues that she does very little except macrame, she has many of the usual activities of a mother and some other duties as well. Since her husband runs his business from his home, it is Charlotte's cheerful voice which most customers hear when they call for service. Charlotte also helps with the billing.

The Charles' family belongs to the East Chestnut Street Mennonite Church where Charlotte teaches the fifth and sixth grades which she says, "are a fun age to teach."

A family hobby is raising horses and riding together. Naturally that involves cleaning stables for the five horses and recent foal. Charlotte adds, "We used to do a lot of trail riding. Now Jim and Mike are team roping."

Both Mike and Melissa are members of the Boots and Saddles 4-H Horse Club and Charlotte says, "They both like to ride in shows - but they have butterflies before the show starts." Charlotte also does her share of participating in horse shows, so they are truly family affairs.

In addition to the work with the horses, the family also works together in Charlotte's large garden. "I like it and can hardly wait to get out and work," she said as this interview was conducted on a grey Winter afternoon. She also takes care of the lawn and fills two big freezers in addition to canning a lot of fruit. Charlotte says she loves to cook and try different recipes.

She is also concerned about physical fitness and she is a familiar sight to neighbors on her bicycle in good weather. She feels regular exercise is important and goes to the Health Spa in Park City up to three times a week to work out for about an hour or more. She says, "I really enjoy doing it." When she doesn't go to Park City she exercises regularly to a television exercise program.

Pork continues as excellent value

LANCASTER — Consumers can expect pork prices to remain at current levels for the first half of 1981. According to the National Pork Producers Council, the supply of pork continues to be plentiful and economical retail prices will make pork an excellent value for the consumer.

Estimates had been made by some that pork prices would rise by as much as 25 percent. Now, this is not expected to happen. The change in expectations has been caused by a higher than expected number of hogs on America's farms.

To take advantage of 1981's good pork prices, remember to buy by cost per pound. This will help you determine the best buys for your meat dollar.

One serving is equal to $\frac{1}{4}$ - $\frac{1}{2}$ pound of boneless meat, such as ground pork, $\frac{1}{3}$ - $\frac{1}{2}$ pound of meat with little bone, such as chops, and $\frac{1}{4}$ -1 pound of meat with much bone, such as spareribs.

When you buy pork, you are buying great nutrition, as well as value. Today's pork illustrates a new concept for many consumers—nutrient density. Pork is a "nutrient-dense" food, meaning it's high in nutrients for the calories consumed.

With all of pork's good value and nutrition, why not freeze some for future meals? To freeze, wrap closely and seal tightly with moisture-vapor-proof material. Be sure to label the package with the name, weight (or number of pieces) and date placed in the freezer.

Freeze at 0°F or less for a maximum of one to three months for ground pork, three to six months for other fresh pork and two months for smoked ham, loins and picnics. Store canned hams and canned picnics according to package label instructions.

Even the busiest of mothers needs time for themselves, so perhaps a craft like macrame would brighten your schedule and shorten the days until real spring is here.

Pork Pleasers

Mealtimes can be adventures in good eating when tasty and nutritious pork highlights the menu.

Pork gives you a chance to economize two ways. First, pork is in plentiful supply making it a good buy with lots of variety from which to choose. Secondly, today's pork is a good buy from a nutritional standpoint - leaner with about 70 calories per ounce of cooked lean meat, higher in protein than ever before and an excellent source of the B vitamins, especially thiamin.

LOW CALORIE PORK LOIN ROAST

Lean loin of pork - trimmed, boned, rolled and tied garlic powder coarse black pepper soy sauce
hot apple juice

Sprinkle the roast liberally with garlic powder, pepper and soy sauce. Place on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Don't add water and don't cover. Bake 325 degrees for 40 minutes per pound. Slice thinly. Pour all fat from roasting pan. Pour 1/2 cup hot apple juice into pan. Stir with spoon to dissolve residue. Pour over sliced pork.

CARE NEEDED IN WASHING ELECTRIC
Electric blankets let you turn the heat way down on cold nights and still stay cozy. Little wonder they have grown in popularity as energy costs have increased.

About 64 percent of American households own at least one electric blanket. But many consumers are confused about how to clean these wired wonders.

The blankets should be washed—never dry cleaned. The chemicals in the cleaning fluid will damage the insulation on the wiring. The blankets can be washed safely in an automatic washer. Avoid hand washing because it is extremely messy and awkward.

Always use lukewarm or cold water. Avoid hot water and bleach. Protect the plug by folding it into a corner of the blanket and pinning it. That way it won't beat against the wash tub. Then follow the blanket manufacturer's directions for both washing and drying.

If you have no directions on hand, follow this procedure:

* Fill washer to high level with warm water. Add detergent and agitate to dissolve. Add blanket and stop washer.

* Soak blanket for 15-20 minutes. Agitate one-two minutes at lowest speed. Advance dial to drain and spin out water.

* Refill washer with cold water. Add fabric softener and agitate at lowest speed for one minute. Drain and spin out water.

If you have a washer with a "delicate" or "woolens" cycle you can use that.

Dry your electric blanket over parallel clotheslines. Some manufacturers suggest partial machine drying, but avoid this unless you have specific directions for your blanket.

SHAWLS AND SCARVES FASHIONABLE, EASY TO SEW
Shawls and scarves can be used to help put together a casually soft and decidedly feminine fashion look.

For those who sew, it's an accessory that can be made easily.

While sewing a scarf or shawl may help the clothing budget, it also adds more creativity in personal dress.

The best fabrics to choose are those that are drapable—soft, lightweight wovens and knits.

Small-scale patterns, stripes, little checks and plaids, florals, and paisleys work well for small scarves.

Here are a few suggestions that may be helpful when making a scarf or shawl:

* Trim off any salvage so that all edges will look alike

* To self-finish a scarf or shawl, fringe the edges of loosely woven fabrics; roll the edges of sheer fabrics, and turn under and machine or hand hem the edges of a lightweight, closely-woven fabric.

* Edges can also be finished by hemming and applying a matching or contrasting fringe, using zigzag stitching on raw edges in a contrasting color and trimming close to the stitches, or applying rick-rack or other trims close to the edges.

Beiler taking European ag tour

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Daryl L. Beiler, member of the Mifflinburg FFA Chapter, is participating in a 17-day Agricultural Travel Seminar in Europe.

The 19-year-old son of Elam and Nancy Beiler, of Mifflinburg, he is touring France, England, Holland, West Germany and Luxembourg, visiting farms, agribusinesses, agricultural shows and tourist sights.

Beiler was awarded the expense-paid trip for being a winner in swine production in the FFA National Proficiency Award Program.

A highlight of the trip is two days at Salon International de L'Agriculture Show in Paris, the largest agricultural show in the world. Livestock, machinery and food products are exhibited at the show that attracts nearly one million visitors from 80 countries each year. Also in France, the FFA members are visiting a beef fattening farm and nursery and tour Paris, the Verdun battlefield, Versailles Castle and Reims Cathedral.

The tour includes London, the Royal Botanical Gardens, Windsor Castle and a cereal and grass seed experiment station. Two nights and a day are spent with an English Young Farmers Club host family. In Holland, the tour covers Amsterdam, polders that have been reclaimed from the sea for farmland and two nights and a day with Dutch host families.

The FFA members will also tour Frankfurt, Germany, see the Cologne Cathedral and visit a beef farm in Luxembourg.

Upon returning to Washington, D.C., the travel seminar participants will host a breakfast for their Congressmen to share the experiences they had on the International Agricultural Travel Seminar.

Tumbler wins state apple recipe contest

HARRISBURG — Mrs. George Tomblor Jr., of Easton took top honors in the Pennsylvania Apple Recipe Contest with her recipe "Three Apple Mold Salad," according to State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell.

Ten finalists, chosen from over 220 entries from across the state, traveled to Hershey to compete in the contest, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board, in cooperation with the state Department of Agriculture.

Hallowell said, "Mrs. Tomblor's recipe, which won her the $200 first prize, was judged best overall for ease of preparation, economy, appeal, taste and appearance."

Judges for the contest were William Trautman, assistant food and beverage manager for the Hershey Convention Center, Marsha Hadjuk, director of standards for Dutch Pantry restaurants; and Betty Rode, home economist, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Other winners were Joan R. Brumgard of Hanover, York County, who received $150 for her second place entry, "Barbecued Chicken." Another York County finalist, Joyce McMaster Moul of York Haven, placed third in the competition, receiving $100, with her recipe, "Scalloped Sweet Potatoes and Applesauce." Sue Arner of Freeport, Armonstrong County won fourth place and $75 with her entry, "Best Applesauce Cake."

The six remaining finalists were named runners-up in the contest and received $50 each. They were Dorothy L. Johnson of Downingtown, making "Holiday Baked Apples," Eleanor Campbell of Sayre, making "Apple Pudding Dessert;" Peggy Leasock of Rockwood, making "Applesauce Meat Balls;" Charles Whittington of Carlisle, making "Apple Cider N' Sauce Cookies;" Joan Wright of Newport, making, "My Apple Pie;" and Margaret Albert of Latrobe, making, "Christmas Fruit Cake."

The ten winning recipes, in which apple cider, apple juice or applesauce must be an ingredient, will be compiled and published in a booklet to be distributed throughout the state this fall during the next apple harvest.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Lately I've been looking over some Agricultural Almanacs printed in the 1870's. They were printed by John Baer's Sons and lucky for me they are printed in English

When I find some genealogical information in German I can read that, but not my German bibles. I tell myself that someday I'll improve my knowledge of the German language

These almanacs cover every imaginable subject from recipes to getting rid of bed bugs by applying quicksilver and egg whites, with a feather, to all parts of your bedstead once a year I never realized that cows, horses and sheep could have so many ailments that needed to be cured.

The contents of these old books also include remedies for human illnesses such as doses of turpentine to cure headaches.

The main feature in the 1870 almanac is on the "Profits of Fish Farming." They state that sowing fish is twice as valuable as sowing corn and that an acre of good water produce twice as much food as an acre of land. Advice is also given to the farmer who is planting Indian corn — he is told to soak it overnight in tepid water before coating it with coal tar or to keep the birds and squirrels from eating the seed. One line of advice reads, "Put a few live fish in your wells, if angle worms infest them."

Bleached celery is given top billing to cure nervousness and palpitations of the heart if eaten with each meal and the common strawberry is extolled as a natural dentrifice. They recommend keeping grapes fresh by burying them in a keg in the ground.

What I enjoyed reading was the article on "Home Cheerfulness." They felt that children go astray not because there is want of prayer or virtue in the home but because it lacks sunshine. Parents were advised to talk to their children and smile so the children will not spend their hours elsewhere.

On being a farm wife
-And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Say, are you keeping house more and enjoying it less?

Do you stumble across the living room floor and trip while traveling to the kitchen?

Is your throat parched and raw from pleading for help?

Do you inexplicably "lose" things for weeks at a time?

Uh hun. Just as I thought.

Another case of chronic "clutteritis."

This disease knows no bounds of race, religion or location, but seems most apt to attack females, especially those with children and farmer husbands.

Symptoms are legion, easily identified and may include these:

-drawers that refuse to close because six Weekly Readers are jammed behind them;

-dirty milk glasses and cocoa cups parked under the coffee table;

-last week's papers and this month's magazines liberally scattered through the house, in quantities to supply your local library;

-toys, sports equipment, sweatshirts, bookbags, shoes and various and sundry personal gear stored from this corner to that.

I had just about given up finding a cure for common clutteritis.

Then a dear friend, a dairy farm wife who works full time off the farm, hit upon the answer.

"What I need is a wife!" she reasons "Someone to keep the dirty clothes washed and put away, to sweep the floor, to start dinner."

Ah, yes A wife would be the answer for those of us suffering from clutteritis.

She could put supper away while I go start the evening milking, pick-up the bathroom after the troops have demolished it getting ready for bed, find a safe home for the Erector Set screws hiding in the carpet and put the cat out for the fourth time today.

Yes, That's it. I need a wife.

Except, I don't think a farmer can afford another one

Crays receives new worker award

PENN STATE — Joyce Crays, Armstrong County agent on The Pennsylvania State University's Cooperative Extension Service staff, has been named recipient of the 1981 New Worker Achievement Award presented by the Pennsylvania Association of Extension 4-H and Youth Workers.

Miss Crays received a plaque at the association's recent annual meeting on the Penn State main campus.

The award is presented annually to an Extension staff member with less than two years of service and who demonstrates outstanding ability in teaching at community, county, regional, and state levels.

According to Carol J. Schurman, Indiana County Extension agent and state awards committee chairman, Miss Crays organized 11 new 4-H Clubs in Armstrong County with a membership of over 100.

She improved county 4-H news letters and initiated a countywide roundup for non-livestock 4-H members. The award winner also formed a 4-H advisory committee and conducted special training for adult volunteer leaders in the areas of staff services, blue forms, and child psychology.

Miss Crays placed major emphasis on 4-H livestock programs. She formed the county livestock sale committee, carcass show, and live animal evaluation program.

She organized the Armstrong County 4-H horse leaders committee and initiated countywide 4-H horse bowl competition. The award winner also served as director of 4-H Camp.

A native of Meadville, she was named to the Armstrong County Extension staff in 1979. She received a bachelor of science degree from Penn State and has done graduate work at the University of Delaware.

Officers of the Pennsylvania Association of Extension 4-H and Youth Workers for 1981-82, elected at the organization's recent annual meeting on The Pennsylvania State University's main campus, are seated from left: Carol J. Schurman, Indiana County, vice president;

Joyce Crays, left, Armstrong County Extension agent, receives New Worker Achievement Award from Carol Schurman, Indiana County Extension agent and awards committee chairman. At right is Dr. Edward Eddy, Penn State University provost.

"Harvestall Chillcuring works."

It's this simple: Harvestall gives me a better product for less."

MERLE STOLTZFUS, Elverson, Pa.

"We've had our 48 foot Harvestall® bin for three seasons now and I really couldn't be much happier with it. Before the Harvestall® we used a batch dryer. Now it's for sale. We found you just can't batch dry corn as cheap as you can cure it with the Harvestall®. Last year I know it didn't cost more than 4¢ a bushel for Chillcuring®. Most of the corn went in at 26% to 27%. Some was over 30%, but we had no mold problem. As a matter of fact our test weight was up around 56 lbs. Some was as high as 58 lbs.

"The farmer really needs storage if he's going to be able to market his crop to his advantage. The Harvestall® system gives him not only storage, but eliminates the need for drying equipment and expensive fuel. Plus at harvest I can fill the bin as fast as the combine brings it in.

"It's really as simple as this: Harvestall® gives me a better product at less cost. So I'm not afraid to recommend the Harvestall because it works so well for me."

The Harvestall
Chillcuring System

It's simple. When grain comes out of the field it's a living seed. So instead of destroying the seed with high heat, moisture is removed with natural air ventilation. The grain keeps all its feed value, there is less shrinkage than with heat drying because only moisture is removed, not dry matter. You'll never see white dust in Chillcured corn. You actually save half of what you're used to losing in heat shrink.

There's no gas or oil to buy. Natural air carries away heat and moisture as the corn releases it.

Harvestall Chillcuring is a back-to-basics system that just simply makes good sense. Find out more about it.

Kid's KOrner

Our Winner

Our winner for "Name that Hog" is Jill Weaver of Ephrata. Her piggy's name and caption were judged for creativity, originality, humor (as we felt the pig was really worth a funny line or two) and imagination. She received a pig book marker for first place. The decision was a tough one as we received over 25 responses. We received names from Egbert to Bruno. And most everyone wanted to butcher the poor piggy. But we decided to let him live and fight it out with Porky Pig. Thank you to all of you who participated, but don't give up; we'll have more contests and pick more winners in the future!

Mr. Piggle-Wiggle says...
"Here comes another day of just sitting in the mud. It's so boring. I'd rather just sit in Liquid Gold. I guess that's how Porky Pig got so rich. I bet he didn't have it this bad."

What it costs to raise food

It costs the farmer money to raise food. The farmer has to know how to manage his business wisely. To the right you see the words of six farmers as they talk about their expenses. Try to figure out what kind of farm each speaker has. Put the kind of farm in the blank space in the box below. Some kinds of farms are in the box below.

5 Pennsylvania 4-H'ers to attend national conference

HARRISBURG — Five outstanding Pennsylvania 4-H members have been named to attend the National 4-H Conference in Washington, D.C., April 4-10.

Selected to participate are Diane Krause, of R3, Slatington; Charlene Gormley, of R2, Newtown; Shelly Wrisley of R3, Troy; Brian Robinson, of R1, Rochester; and William Hosler, of R2, Port Royal.

"The five were named to attend the event on the basis of their 4-H records and participation in county and state activities," points out Dr. William Lindley, youth program specialist at The Pennsylvania State University.

The conference, with headquarters at the National 4-H Center, is designed to provide meaningful involvement among youth, volunteers, and professional staff in 4-H youth program development at the national level and to strengthen 4-H public relations efforts and reporting to the public.

The delegates will have an opportunity to concentrate their efforts in consulting groups stressing programs of national concern to youth and sharing examples of innovative 4-H programs.

A special highlight for the Pennsylvania delegation will be a special session with area federal lawmakers.

Several hundred 4-H members from all states, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia will take part in the activities.

"PLANTING WITHOUT K-MAG IS A LOT LIKE STARTING A TRACTOR WITHOUT A BATTERY."

It's almost impossible to make a tractor work without a battery. Well, you can't expect much better results when a farmer plants crops without adding enough magnesium and sulphur to the soil. It's difficult for them to get started.

K-Mag® not only starts crops right, but helps keep them going at their maximum. All season long. It contains 18% magnesia and 22% sulphur, plus 22% potash. So, when it's mixed with ordinary fertilizers, K-Mag puts back the vital nutrients most of those high-analysis plant foods don't. It becomes a "super food" that strengthens soil for growing grain, forage, cotton, tobacco, peanuts, soybeans, fruit, vegetables—whatever a farmer may be planting right now.

For that farmer, the addition of K-Mag pays off in a more profitable yield. For the dealer, it's a happier customer. This means repeat sales. Because K-Mag works the first time and every time it's used. Duval has plenty of details on how K-Mag can help put that important spark of growing life back into soil.

Stauffer competes in Indy tractor pull

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, March 14, 1981—C25

NEW HOLLAND — Harold Stauffer from New Holland, was on hand last week to compete in the $90,000 purse Super Bowl of tractor pulling, the eighth annual Indy Super Pull in February.

The Super Pull is sanctioned by the National Tractor Pullers Association and co-sponsored by Kendall Refining Company, makers of Kendall Oil.

Puller Stauffer traveled with his tractor from New Holland, to Indianapolis, speed capital of the world, to compete against more than 100 other pullers. He finished 10th in the 5000 pound Super Stock Class event, pulling the weighted sled 196 feet down the 300 foot clay track.

The Super Pull is the annual climax of Grand National Competition and the largest pull, drawing a crowd of more than 33,000 spectators for the three-day event. Stauffer had to pull in a series of regional competitions in 1980 to qualify. All competitors in the Super Pull are NTPA Regional Champions and come from all parts of the country.

Super-powered tractors like Stauffer's Deutz 8006 have gone through extensive evolution since the first recorded tractor pulls with farm machinery in 1929.

Originally the tractors pulled a flat-bottomed sled filled with stones, but five years ago the NTPA patented a weight transfer machine which increases the sled's weight as it progresses down the track.

The Super Pull has two divisions, for Super Stock and Modified tractors. The Super Stock tractors have stock appearance, blocks, transmissions and final drive, but the engines have been extensively reworked. Horsepower outputs of 1200 and 1500 are not uncommon.

The Modified tractors' only restriction is length. Drag racing, high displacement aircraft and marine engines and turbines are used on these tractors. Within both divisions are four weight classes: 5000, 7000, 9000 and 12,000 pound.

The pullers have put thousands of dollars into their prize tractors. The Super Stock vehicles still look like farm machinery, but the modified tractors look like race cars.

When your new home is five years old, what fuel will be available to heat it?

Conventional heating systems tie you to a single fuel. In these times of uncertain price and supply, that's a risky situation.

The HS Tarm Type OT boiler for hot-water central heating systems is different. It burns wood, coal, oil, or gas, and can heat with electricity as well. When you're not burning solid fuel, automatic controls switch to the backup fuel of your choice.

Installing an HS Tarm Type OT boiler in your new home will give you maximum flexibility in choosing your heating fuel, year after year. There's no reason to settle for less.

Grange asks protection for U.S. mushrooms

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania State Grange has recently taken action on the problem of canned mushroom imports disrupting the American market.

"It's time to protect American mushroom producers from unfair foreign competition," announced Charles E. Wismer, Jr., state Grange Master.

Approximately 53 percent of canned mushrooms purchased by U.S. consumers last year were imported, according to a study conducted by the International Trade Commission. This figure has been rising steadily for the past decade, and is expected to climb even further in 1981.

In a recent letter to U.S. Congressmen, Wismer asked for legislation setting import quotas at 48 million pounds per year in the aggregate, and the continuation of a tariff on imports plus an ad-valorem tax (in proportion to their invoiced value).

These monies, Wismer said, should be returned in part to the mushroom industry and used for product promotion and research. Grange policy also favors a check on all imported mushrooms for chemical residues using the same quality standards as for U.S.-grown mushrooms.

Mushrooms are one of the state's largest vegetable cash crops, with a production value of about $142 million, according to the state Department of Agriculture's Crop Reporting Service.

"We need legislation to protect this valuable industry and to straighten out the mushroom import problem," Wismer said. "This should be introduced now, before all our U.S. production is lost to foreign imports."

The U.S. Government Industry Task Force is conducting a study of the American mushroom industry in an effort to help it adjust to problems created by canned imports.

The first phase of the study, now in progress, is being conducted in the Kennett Square-Temple area of Pennsylvania.

Elizabethtown, captured the championship. Farrowed July 27, 1980, the gilt, Of Illini 11-6, is out of CDF 9 Illini Princess 1-4, sired by AED 8F Tuffy A22-5. The reserve champion was shown by Mahoning Creek Farms, R1, Smicksburg.

Judges for the show were Ronald Trostle, Red Lion, a Spotted Swine breeder, and Ronald Harrison, Littlestown, a commercial hog operator.

Jersey group revises sale requirements

LANCASTER — The requirements for the national Jersey promotional sales — the All American, the National Heifer and the Pot O' Gold Sales — were revised by The American Jersey Cattle Club Board of Directors during a recent meeting in Columbus, Ohio.

The All American Sale is held each year in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition, Louisville, Ky. Requirements for this sale state that milking females must be plus over their herd mates for milk or fat, or that the dams of unfreshened animals be plus over their herd mates.

The minimum nomination requirement for the National Heifer Sale, beginning with the 1982 sale in Wichita, Kans., will be a Pedigree Index (PI) of at least +500 milk. The PI is computed by adding one-half of the sire's Predicted Difference for Milk (PDM) to one-fourth of the maternal grandsire's PDM.

Nominations for the Pot O' Gold Sales, held at the time of All American Show and at the time of Western National Show, must have a PI of +700 M. Nominations for this sale must be received in the AJCC office by July 1 for the 1981 sale.

No animal will be catalogued for any of the above sales if it has a declared abnormality carrier in its three generation pedigree.

Complete information may be obtained by contacting Jersey Marketing Service, P.O. Box 27310, Columbus, Ohio 43227, Phone 614/861-3636.

Cattlemen ask congress to support budget cuts

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. cattle industry strongly supports current efforts to cut federal spending, reduce tax rates and ease the costly regulatory burden on American agriculture and business.

That was the message being taken to Congress this week by directors of the National Cattlemen's Assn.

More than 100 NCA board members, in connection with a meeting in Washington, fanned out across Capitol Hill to urge their legislators to support fiscal policies which will help bring inflation under control.

The cattlemen urged lawmakers to support:

1. Total federal budget cuts at least as large as proposed by the administration.

2. Individual and business tax rate reductions and acceleration of depreciation; plus tax reforms, including indexing the tax system for inflation and amending estate tax provisions.

3. Legislative and administrative changes which will ease the current burden of excessive government regulation.

"We are one special interest group that believes the so-called special interests of individual segments of our society and economy must be set aside," said J.W. Swan, NCA president. "We believe that the only game in town right now is reducing government spending and adopting tax programs which will promote, not strife, savings and capital investment.

"We are going all out in support of the administration and lawmakers of both parties as they push for across-the-board budget cuts and reductions in tax rates."

Swan noted that cattlemen currently are in a devastating cost-price squeeze. However, he said, the only sound answer to this problem lies not in more government programs but in less government—bringing less inflation and a rebuilding of the private economy.

"We believe in the free enterprise system," Swan said. "Like the general public, we will benefit most from the government's standing up and saying 'no' to all those who ask for exceptions to general tax and budget cuts. The record of the critics who want to change the current proposals doesn't speak well for the changes they want to make."

"Past policies, which found every group asking for and getting its own special appropriations or subsidies, obviously added up to deficit spending, burdensome government and raging inflation."

"Actually, this approach is in our own 'special' interest. We cannot stay in business if costs keep rising faster than cattle prices. And demand for beef cannot improve unless people's real incomes improve."

The NCA spokesman pointed out that agriculture is in a particularly vulnerable position because of inflation. For one thing, farmers and ranchers, selling commodities as opposed to branded products and services, cannot immediately pass on cost increases. They have no control over the prices they receive.

Unless the economy becomes more stable and unless some of the regulatory and tax burdens are eased, cattlemen said, still more producers will be squeezed out and meat supplies will be reduced.

Citing the adverse effects of excessive government and counter-productive tax policies, the NCA directors compared the U.S. economy in recent years with the economies of other industrial countries.

During the past 12 years, the U.S. has had (1) The lowest growth in real wages; (2) the highest rate of unemployment, except for Canada; and (3) the poorest rate of economic growth, except for the United Kingdom. Real wages (after adjusting for inflation) have risen 251 percent in Japan and only 15 percent in the U.S.

Market hosts growers meeting

LEWISBURG — At a dinner meeting held at the County Cupboard Restaurant in Lewisburg, over 100 Pennsylvania growers were guests of Weis Markets.

The purposes of the Grower/Distributor Meeting were to build a better relationship between growers and Weis Markets through improved communications, to build upon successes already enjoyed and to look for opportunities for continued growth.

George Michalak, Vice President of Perishables, for Weis Markets, said Weis' support of local agriculture has been extremely beneficial. In addition to having a consistent supply of high quality local grown products for their markets and providing the consumer with more flavorful, mature produce, it has helped the local grower and kept spending within the Commonwealth, which has a positive effect on the economy.

The introduction of the Pennsylvania Logo makes Pennsylvania grown products more visible to the consumer. Opportunities for increased growth through the expansion of variety of products grown to meet consumer demand were some of the positive signs for the future.

Other invited guests were the Deputy Secretary of Agriculture for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, E. Chester Heim and Senator Edward Helfrick, the chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Sigfried Weis, the President of Weis Markets, who pioneered the company's relationship with the local farming community, announced that the Dinner Meetings will be continued as an annual event to help provide for the effective maintenance of the Grower/Distributor program.

Grain executive sees farm bill changes

LANCASTER — A grain company executive assessed current farm legislation and said changes are needed when the next bill comes under consideration later this year.

Bernard Steinweg, senior vice president, Continental Grain Company, told a purchasing seminar of the American Feed Manufacturers Association here that three of the key elements of the 1977 Food and Agricultural Act - non-recourse loans, target prices and farmer-owned reserve - should be retained.

"Details should be modified, however," he continued.

Steinweg advocated a moderate increase in the corn loan.

The corn loan presently is a lesser percentage of the wheat loan than four years ago," he noted.

Citing forecast projections of continued increased corn demand, he pointed out that current acreage - even with improved yields - will not meet these requirements.

"While some of this demand is price-sensitive, the supply is weather-sensitive. The risk of building excessive stocks in the years ahead appears small compared to the alternative," he said.

According to Steinweg, there should be a closer relationship between the loan and the market.

"Government use of controls precludes total reliance on this factor, but consideration should be given to setting loans at perhaps a minimum of 70 or 75 percent of average market prices for the previous two or three years," he said.

In his view, target prices based on average production costs including land should be reexamined.

"The mechanics of the program should not be the vehicle to induce production of the less-needed commodities at the expense of those in tighter supply. Conditions could well warrant a limit on payments either as a percentage of loan or production costs - or be eliminated entirely."

Steinweg said the rules of the reserve program should not be changed in "midstream." He suggested a suitable storage incentive should be set and not supplemented by interest-free loans.

"Grain should be allowed to go directly into the reserve, as a device to manage grain prices during a single crop year," he went on.

He reviewed the U.S. grain embargo against the Soviet Union, noting that the Russians have received close to 50 million tons of non-U.S. grain or products in the two crop years affected by the embargo. "Ample evidence that trading patterns can be quickly altered."

"The cost to our taxpayers and the agricultural sector has been significant, and we have still not found our way out."

Poultry production up but prices remain strong

LITITZ — The egg industry once again is facing an adjustment problem as production and marketing costs continue their upward trend and egg production continues to equal year earlier levels.

The big question is "How many eggs will consumers be willing to buy at prices high enough to return a profit to producers and marketers?"

It will likely be less than what was produced and marketed a year earlier. However, the quantity that can be sold profitably will depend on many factors, including prices of other food items and changes in demand for eggs and other foods.

February 1980 was the first month since August 1977 that the number of layers in the United States was below the same month a year earlier. In March 1980 there were about one percent fewer layers on farms than a year earlier. The reduced number of layers on farms each month as compared with a year earlier continued to be about one percent less through July.

In September 1980, the average number of layers on farms was about 0.2 percent more than a year earlier. On January 1, 1981 there were about one percent fewer table egg type layers on farms but egg production was the same as a year earlier.

The cutback in number of layers in the spring occurred after prices were well below the average costs of producing eggs. Following the adverse weather in June and July, which curtailed production and pushed blend egg prices well above production costs, the industry increased the proportion of layers in the nation's laying flock which had been force molted.

Also, other layers were apparently held in production for longer intervals than was planned before prices advanced sharply

This resulted in an increase in the number of layers on farms in September and subsequent months.

A factor adding to the weakness of egg prices last spring was the cutback in quantity of eggs used for hatching of broiler chicks. Demand for eggs for hatching meat type chicks has been strong. Hatchability has been down. This increases the number of eggs needed per 100 broiler chicks hatched and it requires an increased percent of the available supply of hatching eggs.

Hatching eggs can find their way into the table eggs market since not all sizes are suitable for hatching chicks. Also, cutbacks in the number of eggs set because of unfavorable prices in the broiler industry can add to the table egg supply.

Long periods of unfavorable broiler prices will likely result in marketing hens at earlier ages than planned originally.

As the broiler industry continues to expand, an increasing proportion of the nation's total egg production is used for production of broiler chicks. In December 1980 and 93 percent of total egg production was used for hatching chicks.

factor confronting the industry is what it will cost to produce eggs this spring and summer compared with a year earlier. There is no question that costs will increase, but the amount of increase is debatable.

Feed prices lead the list in the amount added to the cost of producing eggs. High interest costs are also pushing costs up. How high feed prices will go this spring and summer perhaps is anyone's guess.

Numerous factors could push prices upward and others tend to push them down. Future prices will depend in part on the farmers' intentions to plant corn this spring, acreage actually planted, date most planting is finished, weather conditions, and harvesting conditions.

Changes in the above factors may have considerable effect on price changes prior to and during the corn growing season, because of the anticipated low carryover of corn supplies from the 1980 crop year. Also, the quantity of livestock fed will have an impact on feed prices.

This includes beef cattle in feed lots, hogs produced, number of layers on farms and broilers produced, as well as other livestock and fowl. A given percentage change in numbers of broilers produced will not change the quantity of feed grains consumed as much as the same percentage change in the quantity of pork produced.

Differences in feed consumption are due to differences in qualities produced and feed efficiencies.

There will be fewer pullets to house this spring and early summer than a year earlier.

However, part if not all of this reduction could be offset by keeping hens in production for longer intervals. More force molted layers will tend to reduce the number of eggs per layer and help to curtail output.

The egg industry must cut production below a year earlier levels in order for prices to increase sufficiently to cover higher costs and return a reasonable profit to the industry. The amount of reduction is uncertain—perhaps two to three percent. It is not likely that demand will change much.

Delaware awards soybean grants

FELTON, Del. — The Delaware Soybean Board announced that it will be granting $34,220. to fund twelve soybean projects during 1981.

The Board's chairman, Joe Hughes, explained that in selecting this year's projects, the Board placed its emphasis upon applied research and market development projects. These are the first projects being funded under Delaware's new penny per bushel, soybean check-off program.

The Board selected this year's projects from nineteen project proposals that had been submitted. Projects funded ranged from Delaware's participation in the nationwide program to develop overseas markets for soybeans to localized variety testing.

Recipients of grants are the American Soybean Association, the Delaware Extension Service, the Delaware Department of Agriculture and the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station.

A listing of the project proposals accepted and the participants includes:

Response of soybean varieties to 2,4-DB, William H. Mitchell, Thompson D. Pizzolatto, Robert Uniatowski and Edward L. Wisk;

Soybean marketing - American Soybean Development Foundation, Jerry Kennedy;

Soybean variety performance tests, Edward L. Wisk;

Soybean variety testing for resistance to the soybean cyst nematode, Robert P. Mulrooney and Edward L. Wisk; Spray Pressure, Volume and Tip Study, Frank Webb and Gary Johnston.

BEFORE it's 5 inches high!

Here's how the Banvel early lay by program works:

1. Apply your pre-emergence herbicide to control grasses.
2. Apply Banvel before corn is more than 5 inches high when broadleaves are germinating, before weeds have robbed significant amounts of moisture or nutrients from your crop.

Result: Banvel early lay by controls a broad spectrum of important broadleaf weeds including the tough ones 2, 4, D, misses during the time when weed control is most needed.

And you probably won't have to go back into the field till harvest!

Senate ag committee votes to forgo dairy hike

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry approved a bill to repeal authority for the semiannual increases in dairy price supports.

The bill (S. 509) was introduced by Senator Jesse Helms, Chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, at the request of the Reagan Administration.

The vote on the bill, which now goes to the full Senate, was generally recognized as the first test in Congress of President Reagan's budget-cutting efforts Enactment of the legislation to forego the increase scheduled for April 1 will save an estimated $160 million this fiscal year and another $86 million in fiscal 1982, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

The vote was 14 for the bill, two against, with one vote present."

An amendment to bar imports of milk, protein products and casein was defeated.

Also defeated were amendments to assure adequate funding for the Federal crop insurance program and to initiate a study of using the protein by-product from alcohol fuel production as a food additive. These were defeated after a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Agriculture assured the Committee there would be money available for the crop insurance program from funds already appropriated and that a study would be made of the protein by-product usage.

In his opening statement, Helms said the initial proposal to forego the April 1 increase was made by former President Carter, and has been endorsed by Agriculture Secretary Block.

Helms said, "I wish to make clear that this legislation does one thing and one thing only. It eliminates the semiannual price adjustments, including the adjustment scheduled for April 1. Price supports will remain at their October 1, 1980, level of 80 percent of parity."

Farm Museum offers "old-time" courses

Mae Brenneman stands by the braided rugs she made to use as demonstrations for her pupils at the rug braiding course at the Pennsylvania Farm Museum.

Learning how to hook a rug the way farm wives of long ago did is no easy chore. Above Maud Zane talks to the class on this almost-lost art.

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

LANCASTER — Tinsmithing, rug braiding, whittling and fraktur may sound like work from a bygone era, but they are also contemporary crafts taught by experienced craftsmen at the Pennsylvania Museum of Landis Valley.

Over 100 people are taking advantage of these craft courses being taught in four sessions each during the month of March.

A lot of concentration is needed to learn some of these old-time crafts.

DIAMOND CAGE SYSTEMS

THE SPACE SAVER - 4 HIGH STACKED The Best Equipment For Converting Old Poultry Houses To Maximum Density

Thinking about making better use of your old poultry houses? Here's the answer.

With Diamond's 4 High Stacked Layer Cage System you can increase the bird density of an old stair step cage house from 30,000 birds to 108,000. And that's without adding a single square foot of floor space. The system 811 is just 73" high and 60" wide.

If ceiling height permits, you can increase bird density even more, up to 135,000 birds with the 5 High System 812 or 162,000 birds with the 6 High System 813.

With new construction you reduce your overall investment per bird by putting more birds in a building and utilizing the otherwise wasted vertical space.

House Capacity, 4 High Stacked

4 Rows - 200' - 28,800 Birds
4 Rows - 300' - 43,200 Birds
6 Rows - 400' - 86,400 Birds

The Diamond Stacked Layer Cage System is available with your choice of three feeding systems: the Flat Chain, F 80 Deep V or Link Chain. And three watering systems: troughs, cups or nipples. Doors are located on front of all cages. Installation is fast and easy.

Three feeding systems

Manure is deposited on rust proof fiber glass manure chutes under each tier of cages and removed automatically by a Diamond manure removal system proven over 12 years.

Eggs are collected automatically by a special high capacity system designed for the Stacked System. Plastic or woven fabric belts are available. Let Diamond take you higher than anyone else in the business with the new Stacked Layer Cage System.

Super High House Density Means Lower Investment Per Bird.

For producers who want the maximum house density in new facilities or converted buildings, Diamond has developed the Stacked Layer Cage System.

This new system is available for deep pit houses and houses with pit scrapers or flat concrete slab.

Farm Museum

Susan Hanna, director of the Museum says, "We offer these courses because we feel it's important for young people to learn these crafts before they disappear completely. Also because it's an important part of our heritage, the way farmers and other people worked and created their own goods."

who work at the Museum one day every week during the summer. People really seem to enjoy watching them."

The public enjoys watching so much that the Museum can boast 65,000 visitors a year.

And because crafts are so much a part of the Museum, crafts days are offered every June also. Last year over 65 types of crafts were offered. Included among these were such oddities as lacemaking,

This year on June 23-26, the 25th annual Institute of Pennsylvania Rural Life and Culture will be held. A group of faculty will be presenting seminars on formal and painted furniture, musical instruments, history of photography, agricultural technology and archeology. Also featured will be a special exhibition of period musical instruments.

Craft workshops will be presented in introductory and advanced tinsmithing;

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, March 14, 1981—C39

Charles Rettew tries a little hand-building with clay. After the pot is created, it will be baked in a kiln.

Phil Richards shows Kathy Landis how to create a pot on the pottery wheel. A steady hand and a tolerance for mud seem to be the chief assets when working with clay.

woodgraining; tatting, tinsel painting; cooking on the hearth and ten plate stove, introductory and advanced bandboxes; and the making of three-dimensional figures in pottery.

"Though we are funded by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, the people around the area really like to help us out. Farm Women Society 1 makes apple butter every year and donates the proceeds to us during Harvest Days at the Museum," Hanna said.

The Museum was opened to the public in 1925 by the Landis brothers. The state purchased it in 1953 and re-opened the 20-building, 104-acre museum to the public.

But the farm museum truly is a "farm museum". Besides the print shop and tavern, there is a farm in operation year-round complete with chickens and pigs.

The museum is open to the public all year and encourages large groups to visit. The are closed on Mondays.

GRAIN MOVING SYSTEMS

Components that move grain can be as important as the storage bins or drying bins you choose. Augers are the heart of your system because they do the work... keep you going during the busy harvest time.

Bazooka augers are long lasting and smooth running. You have a wide choice of capacities, accessories and drives. You can also expand any Bazooka system with a minimum of expense.

BAZOOKA transport augers have chrome-plated intake flights that double its life, a galvanized drive shaft that reduces maintenance time, and permanently lubricated, precision machined chain reducer drive with cast iron housing. Plus many other timesaving, convenience and safety features.

BAZOOKA transfer augers have important differences at the drive end, like heavy duty thrust bearings, machined, cast iron sheaves, and easily adjusted motor mounts supported equally on all four corners.

BAZOOKA sweeps and unloading augers can make quick work of emptying out a bin. Portable types can be moved from one bin to another while permanent types are driven by powerheads located outside the bin.

BAZOOKA Grainclean'r is a rotary type scalper/cleaner with a built-in fines collector.

Switch fertilizer tanks to a Calumet liquid manure spreader with soil injector.

Livestock manure is valuable. So it makes sense to keep as much of that value in the ground as possible. A Calumet 2 or 4-shank soil injector does just that. Teamed with a Calumet liquid manure spreader, the injector puts manure as deep as 12 inches. This can help retain four times the nitrogen that's lost with surface application, as well as reduce odors and runoff.

The Farmer Automatic 4 Deck Cage System

A system well devised and constructed for an uncomplicated and economical operation, modern and advanced, it will help you to gain your well deserved maximum return on your investment.

More layers per square foot of building space, more than any other system on the market today, 10,000 layers per 285 cage row

No special and costly floor or pit construction.

The 4 deck system can be installed in an existing building, without costly conversion or remodeling problems.

Double or even triple your current building capacity

Automatic manure removal, giving an odor free environment, healthier animals, more pleasant and healthier working conditions

Higher bird concentration assures a comfortable, energy saving temperature during cold season.

Summer ventilation is easier to accomplish because of the absence of ammonia and other fumes

Energy Saving Design

Only 3 fractional horsepower motors per row accomplish the automatic feeding, automatic egg conveying and automatic manure removal

Custom spreading can save you wear and tear of your own equipment. And you get the advantage of having solutions applied by a custom applicator that's in top operating condition.

You also get the expertise of people who know how to apply solutions evenly and at the correct rate. Even when they're mixed with pesticides.

What's more, custom application saves you time. And an hour saved at planting time is worth a lot of money.

Before you make any fertilizer decision, visit us where you see this sign. We'll develop a fertilizer program to help you produce optimum profit yields. After all, helping you produce more is what we're here for.

Conservancy buys bog in Susquehanna County

THOMPSON — One of the few balsam fir bogs left in Pennsylvania has been purchased by The Nature Conservancy, which has raised more than $24,000 of the $41,000 needed to acquire and manage an area known as Krall's Bog, in Susquehanna County.

The Conservancy is currently attempting to raise the balance of $17,000.

The Bog was purchased as a 72-acre addition to The Nature Conservancy's newest sanctuary in Pennsylvania, the Thompson Wetlands Preserve.

Initial funding was provided by members of The Nature Conservancy's Eastern Pennsylvania Chapter plus an $8000 grant from the McLean Contributionship of Philadelphia.

According to Bud Cook, the Chapter's Executive Director, "The McLean Contributionship's gift was the key factor in making the project move from an idea to a reality. The end result will be the permanent protection of a pristine wetland system of a type that has practically vanished from Pennsylvania's landscape.

"Krall's Bog is a vital addition to Thompson Wetlands Preserve, which is a 160-acre pond/bog complex donated to The Nature Conservancy by Dr. and Mrs. Robert Shelly, of Thompson."

Cook added that the preserve will be used for scientific research and public education after the adoption of a master plan for the protection and use of the land.

The bog's importance was first reported some 15 years ago in Barton, a publication of the Philadelphia Botany Club.

servancy's Eastern Pennsylvania Chapter after it was "rediscovered" by naturalist Patricia Christian and her husband John Christian, a science professor at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Located about halfway between Scranton, Pennsylvania, and Binghamton, New York, Thompson Wetlands provides habitat for great blue herons, great horned owls, otters, and bears.

Krall's Bog contains balsam fir, black spruce, tamarack, hemlock, and other tree species plus a variety of more than 360 species of vascular plants.

Unusual plants found at Krall's Bog include purple-fringed orchids and other orchids plus insectivorous plants such as sundews, bladderworts, and pitcher plants.

The Nature Conservancy is a national, non-profit organization dedicated to the protection of ecologically significant land. Founded in 1951 the 100,000-member group has protected 17 million acres of valuable natural land through approximately 2400 separate projects.

The Conservancy retains and manages over half the natural areas it acquires, which constitute the largest privately-owned network of nature sanctuaries in the United States.

To date, the Conservancy has already worked to preserve more than 5,000 acres of Pennsylvania's finest wildlife habitat in over a dozen projects. In addition to Thompson Wetlands, three other projects in Eastern Pennsylvania are now Nature Conservancy sanctuaries, administered by local volunteers: Lacawac Sanctuary and Tannersville Cranberry Bog, both located in the Poconos, the Woodbourne Forest and Wildlife Sanctuary, near the town of Montrose in Susquehanna County.

The Conservancy has assisted state and federal agencies in the acquisition of parts of Salt Springs State Park, the Loyalsock Trail, the Tinnicum National Environmental Center, and Valley Forge National Park.

In addition to these projects, the Conservancy has worked on land protection projects with East Stroudsburg State College, the French and Pickering Creek Trust in Chester County, and local government agencies in Abington Township, Lackawanna County, and Luzerne County.

In Eastern Pennsylvania, the Conservancy operates through local volunteer chapter headed by Chairman Thomas Dolan IV Philadelphia. The Chapter Vice Chairman is Fred Studer of Lackawanna County.

To hold agronomy day

WYSOX — This year's Bradford County Agronomy Day will feature corn production with Penn State Extension Agronomy Specialists Joe McGahen and Ray Shupp conducting the program.

The meeting will be held Friday, March 20, 10.30 to 3 p.m. at Wysox Presbyterian Church.

With costs of producing corn climbing forever upward, producers must get the most profitable production to compete in a cost conscious cropping program.

Topics for discussion that have been found to be very significant in producing a profitable crop such as corn population, weed control, planting dates, row spacing, and barren stalks will be given special priority.

Other topics will be hybrid selection, planting, disease problems as well as nitrogen-phosphorus-potassium levels and correlations between production and soil fertility levels.

Subjects that also relate to corn production is another look at the use of manure on crop land, the new soil test recommendations for nitrogen on corn, and a review of the new lime test.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Farm equipment is getting bigger and more expensive, and that is changing some of the traditional ways farmers operate.

Instead of owning every last piece of equipment that's needed to care for a modern farm, many big operators, and some that are not so big, are looking to leasing and custom operators as a way of getting out from under the heavy burden of farm equipment ownership.

Back in the good old days, an enterprising young farmer would buy the necessary tools of agriculture for a few hundred dollars. Granted, that was a lot of money in those days but it wasn't that hard to get started. Now a moderate size beginner is looking at a farm equipment debt of a couple of hundred thousand dollars. And that, combined with today's inflation and high interest rates, is almost too much.

Department of Agriculture figures indicate farm equipment costs now account for about one-fourth of total production costs on the farm and that's up considerably from just 10 years ago.

USDA economist Lloyd Biser says rising costs are squeezing all farmers, but especially those who started farming in the past few years and those who borrowed capital recently to expand.

a special piece of equipment that's needed only occasionally, rather than face the high cost of ownership.

To give some idea of what's happening in the lease business, Biser points out that farmers spend about 10 percent of their total expenditures for farm machinery on equipment leases and custom work. Popular lease items include large tractors, expensive tillage equipment, planters, trucks, even combines.

Custom work has been around for generations. It used to be more of a work-swapping sort of thing, with one farmer providing an extra tractor or a planting rig in exchange for another farmer's help at threshing time. Or maybe the first farmer in the neighborhood to purchase a corn picker would harvest for the neighbors at a predetermined rate per acre.

Custom work has gotten a lot more sophisticated these days with some operators limiting their farming to custom work only.

A lot of indicators are pointing to this specialized kind of farming where in the future certain services will be performed by those who are specifically equipped to do it and have special knowhow.

Such things as grain harvesting, planting and chemical application might all be done by custom operators, who would maximize their use of expensive equipment and special skills and would relieve the farmer of the burden of equipment ownership.

It has long been an agricultural dilemma for the farmer to own costly machines that were used only a few days a year.

The combine is the classic example of that. A good one now costs as much as $100,000 and can be used for only one purpose — to harvest grain. That means a few days or a few weeks of operation a year. The rest of the time it sits around depreciating and costing money.

In the days of horsepower, a farmer would own a good team of horses and a wagon, a plow, a disk, a cultivator, and a grain binder. That might be the sum total of his equipment inventory. That team of horses provided the power for plowing, planting, cultivating, and harvesting. A custom thresher would take care of the specialized harvesting job.

Then tractors were invented.

Some of those same old pieces of horse equipment were hooked on behind them to do the same kinds of jobs — simply replacing the horses. But farm machinery got more sophisticated and tractors got larger and special tractor tools were invented and combines replaced threshing machines, and suddenly every farmer in the community owned several tractors, a full range of tillage equipment, a corn picker, a combine, and other special equipment.

Most of it sat in the shed or out in the barn lot most of the time.

Farmers always have justified that expensive equipment because of the timeliness factor. They must have the tools they need when the weather conditions are right to do the job.

What would happen, they ask, if they had to wait for a custom operator to plant their corn or harvest their barley?

A day or two difference might mean a crop failure. And yet grain has been harvested in the western states that way for years. Custom operators, who start in the south and work their way north proceed as the crop ripens so everybody gets the harvest about when it's needed.

Enterprising farmers who are having a tough time in today's farming game are finding new ways to solve this equipment dilemma.

Some of them bitterly resent being ruled by the very machines that are supposed to be serving them. And so they're getting rid of this burden through leases, custom applicators, work swapping, and other devices aimed at easing the crunch and allowing them to farm and still make a little money.

Not everyone rushing to loose housing

BY DON CUNNION

LITITZ — Not all Pennsylvania dairymen rush to put in loose housing the minute their herds approach 100 milkers. Some prefer to stay with tie stalls. Others opt for a combination of the two systems, utilizing what they feel are the best points of each.

Those sticking with tie stalls give several reasons:

- Fewer health problems because individual animals can be watched more closely.

- Fewer injuries.
- Closer control of feeding for maximum production.
- Animals stay cleaner.

• Better economics. They say it makes more sense these days of rampaging inflation and high interest rates to stick with the setup they've got — even if some improvements have to be made to handle a few more cows — rather than make the extensive and costly changes necessary for loose housing.

- Personal preference.

At the Castrogiovanni farm, Susquehanna County, John and son, David stick with tie stalls for their 100 milkers because they feel they can more closely regulate feeding and watch individual animal health. It's hard to argue with the fact that their herd averages better than 19,000 pounds.

Eugene Purdy, another Susquehanna County dairyman, keeps 130 head in stanchions in two barns. He says he stays with the confinement system out of habit and because of the high costs of switching to free stalls. He can see advantages to both systems. If inflation eases off, however, he might consider taking another look at loose housing.

Alpheus Ruth, chairman of the board of Lehigh Co-op, whose Berks County spread now is operated by his son, Joe, and son-in-law, Dave Butler, remains a strong believer in tie stalls.

"In stalls you can give cows more individual attention and more closely monitor their feed," he says.

"Better cows often get lost in a loose housing arrangement."

Alpheus strongly advocates that dairymen consider getting maximum milk production out of their present size herd before expanding.

"It may sound corny to say it, but I am convinced it is more profitable to get better before getting bigger. Many of the large herds in Berks County have more problems than we do holding to about 80 milkers and tie stalls."

Others agree with Alpheus about holding back on herd size these days. You read recently in Lancaster Farming (January 31 page 2B) how Dick Denison, farm management services director for PFA, and Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County dairy specialist, have come up with pretty good figures to show that the best way to beat inflation is to increase output per cow.

Burd Schantz, Berks County, milks 150 head and utilizes both tie stalls and loose housing. He says he finds the animals seem happier when he moves them around occasionally from one arrangement to the other.

"Some prefer roaming, others like to stay in the stalls," he said.

"Where I put them largely depends on their individual behavior."

He groups his animals by production levels for feeding purposes. The herd average is about 17,000 pounds.

Bill Fallon, Susquehanna County, splits his herd of over 100 milkers between stalls and loose housing and rotates them for milking in the stalls. But he says he may some day go all the way to loose housing, figuring it will be less work than called for by his present setup.

At Loudon Hill Farm, Susquehanna County, Hank Swartz keeps 250 head in tie stalls, but milks them in a double-three Ross Holm parlor. It takes seven hours to run the herd through the one-man parlor, which operates two shifts a day.

"I feel we have better control over the animals than we would have with loose housing," Hank says.

"We can get more cattle in less floor space and keep injuries to a minimum."

Ag chariman discusses new farm bill

ORLANDO, Fla. — Making his first major address since assuming the position of Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, U.S. Congressman Kika de la Garza told the National Farmers Union Convention last week "the farmers of this country have carried the economy of the United States for so long that they have a right to ask for justice."

The House will begin hearings on the new 1981 Farm Bill in March in Washington with the Ag committee facing a battle in maintaining support for agricultural commodities against an overall mood of controlling government spending and inflation.

The congressmen from rural South Texas said farmers needed a support program which will include "an honest figure which reflects their cost of production taken from the farmers' books themselves."

The task will be difficult in a Congress which "does not realize the seriousness of the situation" facing American producers, de la Garza explained.

Personally, the Agriculture Committee Chairman said he would prefer an eight year bill but said a four year Farm Bill was the best he could expect.

The new Farm Bill will be an continuation of the 1977 Farm Bill "with some minor adjustments," the Congressman stated. The reserve program will be continued along with the price support program.

Also, Congressman de la Garza said "we must provide more emphasis on research. Agriculture begins and ends with the scientist in the laboratory."

Commenting on the Russia grain embargo, Congressman de la

Garza said he was personally opposed to embargoes and the overwhelming sentiment in Congress is against them."

He added he would like to include in the 1981 Farm Bill a provision which would protect producers in some instances.

"But we have to remember in a case of national security, we have to yield to the president. He is the one with the most information," he said.

The House Agriculture Chairman said more export markets should be developed for commodities, including the dairy program.

"Our dairy program is basically sound, but it is resulting in a buildup of surpluses and an increase in costs," the congressman noted. He stated the Reagan administration has already asked Congress to pass a bill eliminating a scheduled mid year adjustment in dairy supports due on April 1. Other changes are predicted in the coming year although de la Garza said "we do not know what the final results will be."

Congressman de la Garza said additional work and support were needed for pesticide programs.

"Sometimes I think the world is going to be overrun by consultants and insects," the Congressman joked. "We need pesticides which will be effective yet compatible with the environment," he stated.

Relating his early childhood as a poor boy from a large family who shined shoes to his rise to the Texas House of Representatives and the U.S. Congress, de la Garza told the convention the problems facing the nation could be overcome.

"We still have the greatest nation in the world," he stated.

"The people who are involved in agricultural production can have a direct input into the new Farm Bill which is a reflection of the freedoms and the decision making process in the United States," Congressman de la Garza concluded.

Del. soybeans snatching cropland from corn

BRIDGEVILLE, Del — A 20-year analysis of corn and soybean production in Delaware shows that recently corn has been losing acreage to soybeans.

Between 75,000 and 100,000 acres have gone out of corn production in favor of soybeans over the last four years, according to University of Delaware extension agronomist William H. Mitchell, who compiled the data.

Before 1977, acreage in the two crops tended to run roughly parallel, with the lead shifting from one to the other depending on price and demand. Both grains are used to feed Delmarva broiler flocks.

Mitchell says that some farmers may have been switching to soybeans because they think this is a cheaper crop to grow than corn. Others may favor soybeans because they think they're less susceptible to drought than corn.

Neither of these theories proves out too well in practice, however.

With the credit crunch, production costs have become very important. Extension Crops marketing specialist Carl German estimates that it now costs about $250 to grow an acre of dry land corn, assuming a 100-bushel yield.

Soybeans cost about $50 less to row, mainly because they require less fertilizer.

Opting to grow beans instead of corn strictly on the basis of production costs may result in rather marginal savings, however, says German.

He says he feels farmers who base their cropping decisions on production costs alone may be overlooking the comparative advantage of the two crops on the futures market. Those who do this could be shortchanging themselves.

Mitchell questions the popular theory that soybeans withstand drought better than corn. Rather, he says, soybeans mature at a time when there's a greater likelihood of rainfall.

The critical month for water on corn is July — often a dry month on Delmarva. Soybeans need water during pod set and fill in August and September, historically wetter months in this part of the country.

During last year's drought, Mitchell says soybeans didn't do a bit better than corn. But farmers had less money invested in their beans. German adds that this did not necessarily mean that they made or lost any more money.

Ironically, acreage trends for corn and soybeans are running in the opposite direction from yields. Since 1973, the average soybean yield in Delaware has declined steadily, except for two years.

Corn yields, on the other hand, have been rising in a pattern marked by one poor yield followed by two good ones, but up about two bushels every four years.

While soybeans at their best haven't done much better than they did 10 years ago, the state's average corn yield even after last summer's drought was still above

(Turn to Page D14)

Proven Dependable Gutter Cleaning

Patz gives you strength plus reliable long-term performance.

Examine the Patz features that provide dependability. Choice of two link sizes to match your needs. Progression forging builds extra strength into hook-and-eye link contact points. Final heat treating increases hardness, strength and wear resistance. Patz links withstand corrosion for long chain life.

Select 2" steel angle flites for solid manure or 4-inch high flites for slurry manure. Flites are welded to Patz links, and steel wear shoes on the flites protect gutter and chain.

Heavy-duty link (left) and extra-heavy-duty link (right) for extra-long chains

Four-tooth drive sprocket drives every link...not every other one or every third one but, every link. Each sprocket tooth drives each link behind the hook, the link's thickest and strongest point. The 4-tooth drive sprocket reduces stress on the drive unit.

Three drive unit sizes match your gutter length, allow expansion. The 2, 3, 5 and 10 HP capacitor electric motors match one of three drive units for your requirements. You get versatility and flexibility.

Beans vs. corn

More and more of the very light sandy ground used for growing corn in lower Delaware is coming under irrigation. It's hard to know to what extent this trend is responsible for boosting corn yields. But it's obviously not the whole answer.

The increase in average annual yield started before much of this crop was irrigated. When a sandy field that's a clear drought hazard is irrigated for corn production, a farmer benefits two ways because at the same time that he does away with water stress, he can take advantage of new production practices proven to enhance yield.

Agronomists don't have that kind of handle on soybean yields yet, unfortunately. Yet yields need to go up in order to keep pace with inflation, says German.

If costs continue to increase at the rate of about 10 percent per year, a corn farmer needs to increase his yield by seven to eight bushels per acre depending on price, just to stay even. For soybeans he needs between a two to three bushel increase, depending on price.

Increasing a corn yield by that much is entirely within the realm of possibility.

But what about soybeans? Why aren't their yields keeping pace, too? asks Mitchell.

Is it because of the increasing trend toward double cropping? Is it a lack of outstanding varieties? And to what extent is water limiting Delmarva soybean yields?

Some people say that soybeans don't respond as well to irrigation as corn does. If your yield goal is only 50 bushels and your dry land yield is already 35, maybe that isn't such a big deal. But if you can get up to 75 to 80 bushels an acre, like a researcher at Rutgers University did last summer under irrigation, how much of that increase is due to better water management?

"We need to go back to the drawing board and carefully work this yield problem through on soybeans," says Mitchell. "The answer won't come overnight, or in a single growing season."

Double cropping, limiting water, and limited varietal choices are the three factors he thinks may be most responsible for holding down soybean yields—not fertilizer.

"There's no evidence that soybean yields will be boosted by dumping on a lot of fertilizer," he says, "though high yields are associated with high fertility soil."

By high fertility he means soil that's high in organic matter, has good aeration and other structural properties that affect performance—as well as adequate nutrients.

As soybean yields improve, this crop will need additional fertilizer, too. A way to administer this directly to soybeans may be found, but right now it seems just as effective to fertilize corn land extra well and let soybeans use the residual nutrients the following year, says Mitchell.

Without good soil and well-managed fertility, you can't get good yields.

The soybean plant's poor track record in Delaware over the past 20 years is a clear challenge for the self-help program soybean producers have undertaken through their new check-off system, says Mitchell. There's an obvious need for some good production research on this crop.

Mushrooms make Pennsylvania number one

HARRISBURG — What nutritious, delicious delicacy ranks Pennsylvania number one in the nation? It's not a fruit, it's not a vegetable...nor is it a poultry or livestock product. It's the mushroom, Pennsylvania's March commodity of the month.

Pennsylvania produces nearly one-half of the nation's mushrooms, making us the mushroom capital of the world. Mushrooms are grown mainly in southeast and western Pennsylvania.

The Food and Nutrition Division of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture suggests mushrooms deserve a place in every family's meal plans, whether as a garnish or as a main dish.

As a low calorie treat, nibbling raw mushrooms can't be beat. They can enhance the simplest of foods, and are a great addition to omelets and salads. Of course, mushrooms are a welcome accompaniment to any meal.

One pound of mushrooms contains only 90 calories. They are an excellent source of the B-complex vitamins which help the body convert energy. Mushrooms are also a very good source of Vitamin C and K. Their protein content exceeds most vegetables.

Whether eaten raw or served as a course in themselves, mushrooms are a delicacy.

The secret to preserving that delicacy from the market to the table starts with selection: choose only clean, white mushrooms. They should be from 3/4 inch to three inches in diameter. Avoid mushrooms with brown or black gills, which indicate age.

Keep your mushrooms in a brown bag. Mushrooms are grown in the dark, and are very sensitive to light.

When preparing mushrooms for cooking, keep them in cold water. Trim the base of the stem and clean each mushroom carefully.

This month's Pennsylvania Commodity recipe:

CRISP GOLDEN MUSHROOMS
1/2 lb small fresh mushrooms or 1 can (6 to 8 oz) whole mushrooms

1/3 cup cornflake crumbs

1/2 tsp. Italian seasoning

1/4 tsp. salt

dash ground red pepper, if desired
1/4 cup light cream or half & half

Rinse, pat dry and trim fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms; set aside. In a small paper or plastic bag combine cornflake crumbs, Italian seasoning, salt and red pepper. Dip mushrooms into cream and then shake in bag with seasoned cornflake crumbs. Place on a cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350°F.) for 15 minutes. Serve as hors d'oeuvres or main dish accompaniment. Yield: about 18 mushrooms.

N.J. counties set several horse sessions

HACKETTSTOWN, N.J. — This year the Hunterdon County, N.J. Extension Service will combine an evening program on horse management topics with a day-long bus tour to two prominent horse farms in its annual educational program for horse owners.

The evening session will be held on two successive dates...and in two places: Tuesday, March 17, in Hackettstown High School, and Wednesday, the 18th, in Hunterdon's Extension Center. Both meetings begin at 8 p.m.

They will feature J. Roy Breneman, livestock specialist for Agway, Harrisburg, Pa. A noted authority in the care and feeding of equines, his topic will cover the many aspects of good horse management.

The third subject on the evening program, also considered to be a topic of prime concern to the horse owner, will be "Poisonous Weeds Identification and Control." Speaker will be Dr. John Meade, Extension Specialist in Weed Science at Rutgers.

A tour of two excellent horse farms in the area is set for Saturday, April 4. Demonstrations and features of the day-long tour will relate to topics covered in the evening class.

Tour will be by bus and admittance to the farms will be only by bus. There is a $2 registration fee for the evening class and $10 fee for the bus tour.

Pre-registration is essential.

Details and registration forms are available in any of the following New Jersey County Extension Service offices. Sussex, Warren, Morris, Hunterdon, Somerset and Mercer. Completed form and fee may be sent to either Everett Chamberlain, Warren County Extension Service, Court House, Belvidere, 07823; or H.N. Repair, Somerset County Extension Service, Administration Bldg., Somerville, 08876.

A special one-day seminar is being scheduled by the Mercer, Somerset and Hunterdon Extension Services for horse farm managers and key staff. The date will be Thursday, March 19; the place, Hunterdon's Extension Center; time 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Emphasis, according to Jon Repair, Mercer County Agent and seminar coordinator, will be on pastures, establishment and maintenance. Fencing will be one of the related topics to be discussed.

Md. agriculture to oppose power firm rate clause

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The Maryland Department of Agriculture and a band of agricultural interests will make its stand against Delmarva Power & Light Company's proposed "ratchet clause" rate revolution before the Public Service Commission later this month.

A simple explanation of the proposed ratchet clause in DP & L's rate request filing is as follows. In the "demand charge" portion of the company's proposed rate structure, the highest one-hour power consumption rate in any summer (June-September) month would be used as the demand rate for the following eight "winter months" regardless of how much less demand the customer placed upon the system.

Agriculture's alarm can be seen from this hypothetical example. a sweet corn vegetable processing plant only works during July and August; at some point in time at peak volume it triples its demand for electricity, that triple demand factor is billed against the plant each month until the next summer season despite the fact that the plant could be closed down for 10 months.

This alarm is shared by Agriculture Secretary, Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. who has ordered his department to take an active role on behalf of agriculture.

MDA, which has for months been teaming up with food processors, poultrymen and grain handlers, says the proposal could "seriously endanger the future of the vegetable processing industry on the Eastern Shore at a time when retention of this industry is vital to the welfare of consumers and farmers."

DP & L has proposed a revolutionary change in the way it makes its rates for energy, saying it is attempting to devise a system that will force energy conservation through price penalties.

Agriculture's response to this proposal is that the food processing industry, and to a lesser extent other agricultural operations, cannot shift heavy power demands to less peak electricity usage times.

"When the tomatoes or sweet corn are ready to be processed, you can't wait," say food processors. "The vegetable processing industry must clean, cut, cook and can while the vegetables are fresh from the field. You can't have a truck of tomatoes sitting out in the hot sun waiting until the discount electricity times in the dead of night. Food processing is a business timed to the minute for the sake of flavor and even safety."

For many months now, Cawley and Ernest Shea, Executive Secretary of the Maryland Agricultural Commission, have met with lawyers, farmers and, on some occasions, representatives of DP & L in an attempt to work out a fair solution to the problems posed by the "ratchet clause" concept embodied in the rate case now pending before the PSC.

"We have not been able to get DP & L to recognize the unique nature of seasonal agricultural industries, and their inability to shift time of use patterns and, therefore, will present our case before the PSC at its hearings March 12 and 13 in Salisbury. We have filed testimony in written form with the PSC earlier and had hoped, until the past several days, that some concession would be offered by the utility, but to no avail," said Shea.

Last Friday, Shea appeared before the Eastern Shore delegation to the Maryland General Assembly to brief them on the problem and the history of agriculture's attempt to work out a fair compromise.

DP & L has been successful in neighboring Delaware in getting approval of its new rate designs which incorporate the ratchet clause. However, in Delaware the utility did agree, after considerable public outcry, to a discount percentage on the ratchet rate to be applied.

Electricity rates, as outlined in the utility's proposal, are made as a combination of two major factors. The first is the actual amount of electricity and the time of its use in a given period. The second consideration, and where the ratchet clause comes into play, is in the so-called "demand charge" factor of the rate formula.

The "demand charge" covers the costs the utility says it incurs in gearing up to supply peak power demands. More simply put, it covers costs of the complex electricity generating and distribution, system to provide capacity to meet any projected customer demand.

A simple way of envisioning this is the gasoline tank in your car. "Use" charges would cover the amount of gasoline you put into the tank in gallons and the rate at which you use it. The "demand" charge would cover the cost of the tank, installing it in the car, the fuel line, the fuel pump, the carburetor, ignition system and spark plugs.

In the case of electrical rate-making, the utility says it is necessary to pay for some of the tank and distribution system every time you get a fill up.

According to Secretary Cawley, the threat contained in the ratchet clause concept to seasonal food processor could not have come at a worse time.

"Here we are trying to preserve agricultural land in Maryland and telling people that one of the great advantages of doing so is in the fact that we can grow and process much of our food close at home and, thus, save consumers money on transportation charges. We tell them that we could produce and process much more food than we now do because the capacity is there.

"If our present, and hard pressed, food processors are put out of business because of penalty power rates, we will have lost a major agricultural resource that we'll need in the future more than we do now," Cawley concluded.

Among those who have joined with MDA in formal opposition to the DP & L rate design proposal are Gerald T. Bunting of the Eastern Shore Grain & Feed Dealers Association; James R. Friel, Jr., of S.E.W. Friel, Inc., Queenstown, Md.; John C. Miller of the Maryland Farm Bureau, A. Orrell Saulsbury, Jr., of Saulsbury Brothers and the Mid-Atlantic Food Processors Association, W. Drew Stabler of the Maryland Grain Producers Association, and William R. Stephens of the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc.

Soil, water, next on endangered list?

MADISON, Wis. — Soil and water resources may surpass energy as crisis issues before the end of the century, announced Anson R. Bertrand, U.S. Department of Agriculture director of science and education.

Speaking at a national conference on soil and water resources, Bertrand described some of the research goals that must be met to fill food and fiber production needs while maintaining the quality of the land.

"We are losing our prime farm land at an alarming rate," he warned. "Every day in the United States four square miles of farm lands are shifted to uses other than agriculture." Intensifying efforts to develop domestic energy resources are already beginning to have unintended repercussions on the country's agricultural land base, he said.

There are two options for meeting food and fiber demands, according to Bertrand.

The first option, he said, is to bring more acres of land into production. The price for this path continues to increase as marginal lands brought into production further deplete dwindling water supplies, increase erosion, contaminate existing water supplies and increase the energy required to manage these lands.

The alternative is to develop technology leading to increased productivity on the existing land resource base. This calls for managing the land to check severe soil erosion and depletion of water supplies.

"Much of our research in the past has focused on developing ways to maintain yields in spite of erosion," Bertrand said. "We have largely ignored the long-term effects of soil erosion on crop productivity and the environmental consequences of soil loss. These are things we must now consider."

"Failure to control soil erosion on U.S. farms and ranches could double the cost of producing food and fiber over the next 50 years, without regard to inflation or other factors," he said.

In addition to the serious effects of soil erosion, Bertrand warned of water shortages that many parts of the nation will face unless new techniques for management and use of water resources are developed and put into practice.

Irrigated acreage in the United States has almost tripled in the last three decades, now consuming more than 80 percent of the water used in the nation. About 40 percent of the irrigation water comes from ground water, which in many areas is being used faster than it is being recharged.

Bertrand described some USDA projects seeking long-range solutions to these problems. Scientists at a national soil erosion laboratory, built on land provided by Purdue University in Indiana, will concentrate on all aspects of soil erosion, its impacts and control.

USDA's Science and Education Administration is planning a moisture conservation-plant stress laboratory in the Southern Great Plains, where scientists will deal with water resources-land management problems. Planning for this laboratory, the only one of its kind in the world, involved scientists from Australia, Israel and Mexico as well as the United States.

Other USDA research areas include work on water harvesting to enable more effective and efficient use of water supplies; non-point pollution; finding a workable system for modified dryland agriculture to make the best use of available moisture; weed and insect control for minimum tillage; use of crop residues; effective use of sewage sludge and industrial waste; better understanding of plant nutrients and their basic relationships in soil and water resources.

Reagan says 'no' to meat import quotas

WASHINGTON, D.C. — March 3 Secretary of Agriculture John Block announced last week that President Reagan will not impose quotas on meat imports during the second quarter of this year, and predicted quotas would not be necessary for the rest of 1981.

Block said the U.S. Department of agriculture's second quarterly estimate of 1981 U.S. meat imports indicates the United States will import 1.402 billion pounds of meat covered by the Meat Import Act of 1979.

This act requires the president to restrict imports of certain meats — primarily beef and veal — if USDA estimates imports of those meats will equal or exceed 110 percent of a stated level.

"Based on today's estimate, there is no need to impose import restrictions during the quarter beginning April 1," Block said. "Our analysis of conditions in this country and abroad affecting meat imports strongly suggests there will be no need for import restrictions for the remainder of the year."

USDA makes a new estimate of meat imports before each calendar quarter. For 1981, quotas would be required if imports are estimated to equal or exceed 1.447 billion pounds. The USDA estimate released today is 45 million pounds below that level, Block said.

Last November, USDA estimated 1.458 billion pounds of meat would be imported in 1981. This estimate was 11 million pounds above the trigger level.

On November 28, former President Carter announced his intention to implement — and then suspend — meat import limitations under provisions in the law. A 30-day public comment period was provided in accordance with the act.

While the comments were being reviewed and analyzed, first by the Carter administration and then by the current administration, USDA received new data on the effects of the drought in Australia. These data indicated a substantial reduction in the export availability of beef from that country during 1981.

Australia normally supplies the United States with about half the imported meat subject to the act. Although a drought was in progress in Australia at the time of the first estimate, its impact on production and exports was more severe than earlier forecast, further depleting stock inventory levels in 1981, Block said.

Despite some rain during December through February, rangeland conditions, particularly over the central and southeastern cattle producing areas, are still generally in only fair to poor condition, Block said.

Also, he said, lower U.S. prices, higher interest rates and a strong Australian dollar further reduced incentives to produce meat exports for the U.S. market.

Consider earth terraces

CHAMBERSBURG — "County farmers have an important tool available for controlling cropland erosion," reports Charles Worrlow, soil conservationist for Chambersburg Soil Conservation Service.

"Earth terraces on sloping farmland will catch runoff water and slow it down, reducing the movement of soil off the field. In addition to conserving soil, herbicides and fertilizers are kept in place and soil moisture is maintained, increasing crop yields", says Worrlow.

An earth terrace is a channel across the slope which intercepts rainfall and snow melt and directs it to a safe outlet. On slopes of less than 8 percent, terraces are constructed so modern farm machinery can operate over the entire terrace with no loss of cropland.

On slopes over 8 percent, terraces are constructed with an unfarmable backslope kept in grass. Crop acreage losses with this type terrace are offset by increased yields due to soil, herbicide, fertilizer, and water savings.

For more information on conservation terraces, contact the local Soil Conservation Service office.

Iowa nutritionist recommends buffering light feeder calves

PISCATAWAY, N.J. — Lightweight calves under 400 pounds give operators of large feedlots more marketing flexibility when margins are tight, says Allen Trenkle, Iowa State University beef specialist and nutritionist.

Cattle producers buying lighter calves on reduce feedlot turnover, important when supplies are limited, and may be more selective when buying replacement stock. But lightweight calves need extra tender care.

Incoming calves should be immediately checked for disease and supplied with fresh feed and water to provide a quick burst of energy and prevent dehydration, says Trenkle. He suggests starting young cattle with a receiving ration of 30 percent corn, 55 percent chopped hay, 7 percent molasses and 8 percent natural protein supplement. Where silage is fed, a ration of 30 percent hay, 62 to 64 percent corn silage and 6 to 8 percent natural protein supplement will get light cattle off to a good start.

Lightweight calves need higher levels of digestible protein to gain weight quickly and attain good feed efficiency, comments Trenkle. Skimping on protein supplement is a poor practice, he says, that is responsible for slowed growth that costs cattlemen more in the long run. Urea should not be fed in rations for lightweight cattle, he warns.

"Young cattle are growing mostly lean tissue. An adequate supply of natural protein remains critical to their growth up to 500 to 600 pounds. Once they achieve that weight, it's usually safe to begin feeding non-protein nitrogen," he explains.

High costs are pushing feedlots to finish cattle as soon as possible, gradually converting them to a higher grain level early in the feeding cycle. However, ruminants trying to adapt to high energy feedstuffs at an early age are susceptible to loss of appetite and digestive upsets.

One prime concern for cattle producers is a potential buildup of rumen acids. Cattle neutralize excess rumen acids naturally with sodium bicarbonate secreted in their saliva.

But young cattle salivate less and thus have a less effective natural buffering system, notes Trenkle. Feeding supplemental bicarb at 0.5 percent of dry matter helps them adapt to high grain rations earlier in the feeding period, he says.

"The most consistent positive responses to bicarb have occurred when it's fed at high levels to lightweight cattle. A high grain, low roughage ration can be a problem with cattle at any size, but it is an acute problem in lighter weight cattle."

The greatest response to bicarb supplementation has been recorded in experiments where cattle were fed rapidly fermenting rations — corn silage, wheat and more exotic feeds, such as potato waste.

Cattle producers feeding any of these rations will benefit most from bicarb supplementation, Trenkle adds.

Check your yard daily to see if any cattle are having difficulty adjusting to ration changes," he recommends. You may want to alter the percentage of bicarb in their ration until you find an optimum level for your particular feedlot.

Thorncraft to host horse show

MALVERN — The University of Delaware Equestrian Club is sponsoring an Intercollegiate Horse Show on Sunday, March 15, at Thorncroft Stables, Malvern, Pa. Riders from 20 regional colleges and universities will participate—but none from Delaware.

The 60 members of the Delaware club will be too busy to ride. As the sponsors, one of their many jobs will be to hire horses from nearby stables. Riders will have to pick the names of the horses they'll be riding out of a hat.

According to Cindy Brandon, a member of the Delaware

Equestrian Team, riding an unfamiliar horse over fences and on the flat really tests a rider's skill. The system is also a boon to students who don't have their own horses, or who don't have their horses with them at college. It gives everyone a chance to participate.

The Delaware riders will have their chance to participate in nine shows sponsored by other schools in the region later in the season, according to their advisor, Dr. C.M. Reinour. They'll be traveling through Maryland, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey.

Fiberdome SILO CHUTE made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7 1/2' sections to minimize the number of joints.

Connecting joints have a 2 1/2" tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

Chester SCD seeks funds for White Clay Creek

WEST CHESTER — "Application is being made for funds for a land assessment survey of the White Clay Creek Watershed in Chester County", Pownall Jones, Chairman of the Chester County Conservation District told Directors at the District meeting last week in West Chester. The contract is being negotiated with the state Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation. "The assessment would be a survey of the stream and surrounding land uses", Jones said. "The assessment will attempt to determine how much mud, if any, agricultural land is contributing to the White Clay Creek during storms. Property owners in the White Clay Watershed would be asked to assist in locating problem areas."

"Agriculture is nearly always pointed out as the culprit when pollution occurs in Chester County streams. Yet other stream studies in the past have shown that increased run-off from the impervious surfaces of shopping centers, roads and homes can contribute to the sediment load in the stream", Jones explained.

"Farmers are just as concerned about not damaging their neighbor's property as is the developer and the suburban land owner. With more and more people concerned about water quality, it seems that farmers would want to be above reproach. They will want to do the best job they know how in managing their land," Jones concluded.

John Schueller, regional fieldman for the Department of Environmental Resources told Directors "that erosion/sediment inspection and enforcement program has been transferred from the Bureau of Water Quality to the Bureau of Soil & Water Conservation".

Townships that are now reviewing subdivision plans and giving approval for erosion/sediment and storm water management control can request the Bureau to transfer these inspection and enforcement powers to the township or municipality.

This would result in faster and more effective response for residents who report damages from erosion/sediment and storm water control problems.

The Brandywine Valley Association is planning a complete implementation of its conservation plan for its new headquarters property for the week of April 21. This will be a demonstration of agricultural conservation practices.

Agricultural contractors have volunteered to provide operators and equipment for the two day affair.

Practices to be included in the construction according to Robert Struble, Jr., Executive Director of BVA, are terraces, waterways, strip-cropping, and no-till planting.

This will provide a training session for SCS personal and contractors. The Soil Conservation Service, USDA, is a technical agency providing services for District cooperators. The new headquarters will be located between West Chester and Unionville on route 842.

Gerald Kelly, Service Forester, indicated that the Bureau of Forestry will conduct sessions on the care and management of woodlands. "With proper management, small woodlots can be an important source of fuel and lumber for the rural home", Kelly said.

"This will be an excellent opportunity for farmers and the public to observe the installation of agricultural conservation practices", Struble said. There will be guided tours of the project areas. Guides will explain the various operations. Exhibits are being planned on related environmental subjects, he explained.

LANCASTER FARMING CLASSIFIED

I'M NOT A LION...

The Classified Livestock Section Has Beastly Selections!

How crax differ on feed lines

MAYTOWN — One hundred eggs were sampled each month in June and July 1980 from SCW Leghorn layers in cages being fed from an outgoing feed line, these were compared to 200 eggs gathered from birds on an incoming feed line.

An average of eight percent cracked eggs were produced on outgoing as well as incoming feed lines, so there were no differences in the total average number of cracked eggs produced whether birds were eating fresh, home mixed feed from the bin or feed that had traveled several hundred feet past several thousand birds eating at it.

Percent cracked eggs between samples had no variation between samples on the outgoing feed lines but varied eight percent (four to 12 percent) between monthly samples on the return feed line.

Also specific gravity of eggs produced was only slightly different with three percent more eggs reaching 1.080 specific gravity on the outbound feed chain production area.

Variation between samples was zero on the outgoing feed line while there was 14 percent variation in specific gravity of eggs between monthly samples on the return feed line.

Haugh units were measured by the egg break out method on all eggs and found to have little variation in AA quality eggs between samples on each line, however, only 77 percent eggs were produced on outgoing lines while an average of 86 percent AA eggs were produced by birds on return lines.

An average of eight percent blood spots were produced on outgoing feed while only four percent bloods were produced on return feed lines.

An average of 23 percent of all 200 eggs sampled were dirty on the return line while only 17 percent of the 200 eggs were dirty on the outgoing line. Translucent shelled varied only one percent between the outgoing (16 percent translucent shells on eggs) and the return feed line (15 percent translucent shells on eggs).

Average B shells and body checks ran seven percent of all eggs on the outgoing line while only six percent on the return line.

In summary when comparing egg from birds on outbound feedlines, they lead in percent bloods in eggs, while birds on return feed lines lead in percent dirty and percent AA interior quality eggs. No difference was observed in percent cracked eggs or B shells on eggs from birds fed by outbound feed chains compared to returning feeder lines.

It is believed that there may be a behavioral difference in birds on inbound feed line having to compete more, hunt more or work more to get feed. This may be a factor that needs study.

Trees cut fuel bills

HARRISBURG — "Don't blame high fuel bills on cold weather blame them on winter winds," says Duayne Forsberg, resource specialist, Dauphin Conservation District. "Knock those winds out of old man winter's sails by planting trees around your home for a wind-break"

According to Forsberg, a solid row of evergreens, about 20 feet high, will slow down winds for a ground distance up to 200 feet and can lower home heating bills up to 20 percent.

Each spring the Dauphin Conservation District observes Arbor Day by conducting a tree seedling sale. These trees are three and four year old bareroot seedlings. Four species of coniferous trees averaging 12" in height and six species of deciduous trees averaging 20" in height are available.

Forsberg elaborated on the species for sale. They are Douglas fir, blue spruce, white pine, Norway spruce, red oak, white flowering dogwood, black walnut, Russian olive and scarlet maple.

Individuals interested in purchasing trees can call the Conservation District's 24 hour "evergreen" line at 652-7073 or write to the Dauphin County Conservation District, 75 S. Houcks Road, Suite 305, Harrisburg, PA 17109 to request an order form with prices and tree information. The deadline to order trees is April 6.

Trees will be available for pick-up on Saturday, April 25, between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Pick-up locations will be Colonial Park Plaza, U.S. Rt. 22 and Colonial Road, and Lykens Valley Plaza in Elizabethtown.

When times you don't sell Neither do

You know how it goes on the farm. The right combination of circumstances can put you on top of the heap, or land you in a heap of trouble.

Let's face it. A number of circumstances haven't been too favorable for the farmer lately — or for the companies supplying the farmer with products.

Massey-Ferguson is no exception. But then, a company with a 134-year heritage should know how to make it through tough times. We do.

Massey is weathering the storm with a show of strength.

Right now, we're looking at the best MF product line in our history. Quality control has been strengthened with new manufacturing equipment and higher standards. We have the unwavering support of a large, well-established dealer network.

Further testimony to Massey's strength is a comprehensive re-financing package we're putting together, working with various lenders and the governments of Canada and Ontario. When it's fully in place, we will face the future with even greater vigor. Meanwhile, we are concentrating on what we do best — making very good agricultural and industrial machines and diesel engines. And you can be sure we will focus greater effort on the largest market in the world — North America.

It feels good to be bouncing back strong.

You'd probably agree that a farmer's problems aren't always his own doing. But just because he has those problems, he doesn't give up . . . or, as they say, sell the farm

That's exactly the way we look at our situation at Massey. We've got all kinds of confidence in our products and in the dealers who sell and service them. In a free marketplace, we've got what it takes to get our share and then some

Frankly, we want to do business with you. You are our business

Now, more than ever, Massey makes sense.

We are the free world's largest manufacturer of tractors, and second largest in combines. So you know a lot of people believe we make a very good product

We can point to some great new products including our expanded line of 4-wheel drive tractors and our higher capacity 800 Series combines

So go see your Massey dealer. Get to know him. Get to know what MF machines have to offer.

Really, you'll like doing business with a company that knows a thing or two about weathering a storm. That's us, and when you think about it, we're probably a lot like you
